

LONDON PARLEY CONCLUDES WORK TO HELP GERMANY

Many Of Ministers Will Go To Berlin To Get Personal Insight

London, July 23—(AP)—Renewal of short term credits maturing in the next few weeks and measures to establish confidence in Germany so that eventual long term credits will be possible were approved by the seven-power conference on Germany's situation at the conclusion of its work this afternoon.

The meeting was adjourned with a round of speeches in which the heads of the various delegations expressed their appreciation of the spirit of friendliness which pervaded the conference, and later there was an official communique which said "the governments are ready to cooperate so far as lies within their power to restore confidence."

There was, however, no disguising the gravity of the German representatives as they left the conference room.

Chancellor Brüning declined to make any statement, and while Foreign Minister Curtius was officially hopeful, other members of the delegation remarked privately that the conference had only tried Germany over the immediate future and the contingencies of the next few days may reveal the crisis.

Four Phases of Report

Besides the resolution extending the $100,000,000 central bank credit which matures August 16, and another recommending that "concerted measures" be taken to maintain the volume of credits already in Germany, there are two other phases of the meeting's final report.

The first of these is the recommendation that the World Bank at Basel be invited to set up immediately a committee of representatives of the central banks to inquire into the immediate further needs of Germany and to study the possibilities of converting part of the short-term credits into long-term credits.

The second phase is an expression of commendation for the guarantee recently placed at the disposal of the German gold discount bank by the leaders of German industry and finance.

"The conference considers that if these measures are carried," says the official communique, "they will form a basis for more permanent action to follow."

To Study Young Plan

Simultaneously with issuance of communique the British Foreign Office put out a statement that the committee of young plan experts as to the Hoover moratorium would proceed with elaboration of detailed measures to give effect to President Hoover's proposal for a one year suspension of inter-governmental debts.

Simultaneously it was announced that tentative arrangements have been made for Secretary of State Stimson and possibly Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to go to Berlin tonight with the German delegation.

Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson of Great Britain will go by train, probably Sunday, and Prime Minister MacDonald will fly over on Monday.

A member of the German staff said it was hoped that these statesmen might be convinced during their visit to Berlin of the seriousness of the German emergency.

This afternoon all the delegates will attend the royal garden party at Buckingham Palace.

The French representatives will go back to Paris tomorrow and the Belgians will leave tonight with the Germans.

STIMSON IS PLEASED

London, July 23—(AP)—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in a formal statement today expressed satisfaction with the results of the seven-power conference on the German financial crisis.

"Mr. Mellon and I," he said, "are very well satisfied with the labors of the conference. They form a fitting sequel to the effort made by President Hoover to stay the mistrust of Germany and thus endangering the economic condition of the rest of the world."

Mr. Hoover's efforts relieved Germany from the burden of paying $400,000,000 this year and enabled her to set her budget in order.

"In spite of that, however, mistrust remained and creditors continued to withdraw money from German banks. This threatened to cripple German industry. Their action was the result of fear of unsettled political as well as economic conditions."

To Alay Panic

"The governments of all these creditor countries also have agreed to use their influence and leadership in allaying the panic which was causing withdrawal of German credit. This course, if successfully carried out, will leave Germany in possession of the capital on which her factories

ALL OUT OF LUCK

Chicago, July 23—(UP)—Most of Pete Kinnas' customers are policemen because the Kinnas restaurant is only a few steps from the State Street police station, but it was Kinnas' luck to have only two civilians at his lunch counter when four bandits walked in today.

The robbers drove the customers and a waitress into the kitchen and took $1,400 from Kinnas shortly before the noon hour rush of hungry officers.

SAUCE FOR GANDER

Chicago, July 23—(UP)—It is part of the business of Ray Melandy, 48, as a private detective, to slip up behind men who don't pay their alimony and say: "come with me."

Melandy was at work today in a large factory on the south side when two men approached him from the rear. The men were Police Sergeants George Homer and John McVigh, and they trapped him deftly and professionally on both shoulders, and said: "Come with us."

"Why?" asked Melandy.

"Because we have a warrant which charges you with owing your Catherine, $4,500 back alimony," Sergt. said. "It seems that a judge in Lansing, Michigan, ordered you to pay Mrs. Melandy $75 a month back in 1927."

PLANS CHANGED

Chicago, July 23—(UP)—The new and elaborately engraved casket which police "found" hadn't been lost at all. It was learned today after a policeman had guarded it all night.

"Why are you watching that truck?" C. R. Barnhill, salesman for the Illinois Mausoleum Company, asked the policeman today. "It belongs to me and so does the casket in it. I live right here and left the truck parked in front of my own home over night."

The policeman went back to the station and ordered cancelled his superiors' plan to advertise the casket in the lost and found columns of the newspapers. They had believed that the truck was abandoned and the casket a lost one.

KNOWS HIS PHILOSOPHY

Cincinnati, O., July 23—(UP)—A Keith Watcher, 38-year-old mechanical designer, frankly stated that he was a philosopher and that Kant and Plato knew how to dissect the problems of life.

Mrs. Marie Watcher, 35, hadn't much to say except she had tried philosophy for Keats' sake, but couldn't make much of it.

Judge C. W. Hoffman, of Domestic Relations Court, showed only slight relief for Watcher's dissertations.

"Now, I list the advantages and disadvantages of a change from marriage," Watcher said—

Judge Hoffman broke in and granted a divorce to Mrs. Watcher.

Watcher's list included: advantages—avoidance of prolonged despair, freedom and mobility, excitement and variety of the chase, release from the bondage of ignorance, less expense, exhilaration of improved mental habits.

Disadvantages—Worry, loss of housekeeper, loss of acceptable company, loss of prestige in business and in society, loss of property, loneliness, fear of a worse fate.

BIDS ON $50,000,000 WORTH OF PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS IN STATE MUST BE REJECTED, READVERTISED

Springfield, Ill., July 23—(UP)—All bids pending on state, county, municipal and other public works projects and said to total well above $50,000,000, which have not been submitted under the new prevailing rate-of-wage law, enacted by the recent Illinois General Assembly, must be rejected and readvertised, according to an opinion by Attorney General Oscar E. Carstrom, here today.

The opinion has a direct effect on $5,000,000 worth of state projects which had been advertised for contracts and numerous other projects in towns and communities where the advertised bid failed to specify that successful contractors must pay the prevailing rate of wage in the community where it is proposed to carry out public work projects, which may be construction of new roads, build-

MANHUNT BRINGS DISCOVERY OF SUICIDE'S BODY

Officials Didn't Know Tragedy Had Taken Place Till Then

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 23—(UP)—A statewide search in progress today for the man who killed Louis Palmer and attacked Palmer's sweetheart has led to solution of another tragedy which officials did not even know had taken place.

While searching through the Black Forest for Palmer's slayer, a posseman stumbled onto the body of Stuart Sweet, a young Denver broker who disappeared two weeks ago when he was indicted for embezzlement. Sweet's body was slumped against a tree. A shotgun lay beside it. It was believed he had committed suicide.

The finding of Sweet's body was, however, the only result so far of the extensive hunt for the killer. Two arrests have been made but officers doubted either would throw any light upon the mystery.

One of those arrested was William George, a Baltimore seaman who was arrested for questioning in Denver. The other was Oria Allen, 23, who was arrested in far away Mt. Clemens, Mich. Allen was said to answer exactly the description given by Miss Glenda King of the man who killed her sweetheart and attacked her. Police doubted that the slayer could have traveled to Mt. Clemens between the time of the killing and the time of Allen's arrest.

Doctor Convicted Of Woman's Death

Chicago, July 23—(UP)—Found guilty of causing the death of an Aurora, Minn., girl by an illegal operation, Dr. Thomas J. Ney of Chicago was under sentence today to serve 15 years in prison.

A jury deliberated two hours and a half before finding Ney guilty last night of causing the death of Miss Elma Bromps, 20, on April 15. Jurors later said they agreed on the question of guilt on the first ballot and spent the rest of the time agreeing upon a sentence.

The state's principal witness was Robert Berry, 24, who testified he paid the doctor $50 to perform the operation upon Miss Bromps. He said he introduced the girl as his sister and took her to see Ney five times.

Ney also is under indictment in connection with the death of Miss Eunice McElroy, 21, who died in 1928. The doctor has secured 27 continuances in that case.

New Method Found To Kill Bacteria

Chicago, July 23—(AP)—The discovery of a new method of isolating bacteria which heretofore have remained invisible, announced by Dr. Arthur I. Kendall, Professor of Bacteriology at Northwestern University, was hailed today by his colleagues as an important victory in the fight of science against disease.

Some of Dr. Kendall's associates described the discovery, revealed in a lecture last night, as the most important victory in the isolation of bacteria since the discoveries of Louis Pasteur. They said it probably would open the way for a more thorough and exact knowledge of such diseases as influenza, rheumatism, infantile paralysis and sleeping sickness.

FOREST FIRE IN BLACK HILLS IS OUT OF CONTROL

Spread From Ranch To National Forest: Other Fires

BULLETIN

Deadwood, S. D., July 23—(UP)—Forest fires burning on a 50-mile front were halted only two miles from Deadwood today by a shift in the wind and efforts of 1,000 men recruited from neighboring ranches, mines and towns.

The fire blazed from Pringle to Deadwood but a shift in the wind turned the tide away from the city which during the days of '76 was one of the frontier outposts of the miners seeking gold in the Black Hills.

Five hundred ranchers, Federal forest rangers, hundreds of residents from Deadwood, Lead and Spearfish augmented the 400 soldiers from St. Meade and residents from Sturgis in battling the flames, which started on the John Custer ranch, five miles east of here. A tourist was reported to have driven away just before the ranch barn burst into flames.

Mining buildings of the Golden Crest Mining Company and ranch buildings in the vicinity were threatened by the flames but forest officials were hopeful that the wind shift will also save the buildings. Residents have fled.

More than 400 men are battling another blaze near Hill City, believed to have been caused by a cigaret. The fire is making slow progress, late reports indicate.

Deadwood, S. D., July 23—(AP)—Fire that started in a barn on a ranch five miles east of here and spread to the Black Hills National Forest today was being fought by several hundred soldiers, ranchers and Forest Rangers.

The flames swept rapidly through trees and underbrush made extremely dry by prolonged drought and were out of control before Forest Rangers could be notified.

Four other fires, all under control, were reported burning in scattered sections of the Black Hills.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 23—(AP)—Tourists and dude ranch guests have joined National Guardsmen and Forest Rangers in a fight against Wyoming grass and timber fires which have spread over an area of officials estimated at 50,000 acres.

Vacation visitors after a thrill have found it in the smoke and flames. A huge fire near Rocky Point, in northeastern Wyoming, destroyed several ranch buildings and 200 head of cattle. The loss in wild life was not determined.

FIRES IN FOUR STATES

Denver, Colo., July 23—(UP)—Fires swept the forests of four western states today, where more than 70,000 acres of timber and grass range have been burned.

The most serious fires were reported from Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho, with smaller fires in South Dakota.

One of the largest fires, 16 miles from Anaconda, Mont., already had destroyed several farm buildings, and today threatened sectors of the summer home colony at Silver Lake.

Mount Haggin dude ranch employees rescued two parties of vacationists from the fire zone Wednesday.

From the south, across the Idaho state line, a fire in the Salmon Forest was working its way through Big Hole pass into Beaverhead National Forest. Last night 300 men were sent to the area.

Several fires were reported from Yellowstone National Park, but only one was serious.

Eastern Wyoming was hard hit, with losses estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

Wheat Owned By Farm Board May Be Seized By Co.

Marysville, Kan., July 23—(UP)—County authorities threatened today to use force in an effort to collect taxes assessed against wheat owned by the Federal Farm Board and stored here.

The Stabilization Corporation was transferring 198,760 bushels of wheat from a Marysville storage plant to Chicago. Clyde K. Rodkey, County Clerk, taxed it at the rate of 55 cents a bushel, the price at the time of assessment, calling for $2,372.52 to be paid the county.

County Treasurer Reuben A. Olson notified agents of the Farm Board that the wheat would be attached unless the taxes are paid. Sheriff John Kirch said the cars would be chained to the rails if he were ordered to attach them. About 75 cars remain to be loaded.

Attorneys for the Stabilization Corporation argued at a hearing before the State Tax Commission last month that wheat owned by an arm of the Federal government was immune from local taxation. The Commission decided that the wheat is private property and subject to taxation.

ROBBERS OF PAW PAW STORES ARE THOUGHT CAUGHT

Woman, Held In LaSalle County Jail, Tells Of Other Thefts

Early in the morning on June 25, two safes were blown in Paw Paw and about $250 was reported taken. Sheriff Fred Richardson conducted an investigation but no light was shed on the daring safe crackers until this morning. The Sheriff this morning was acquainted with the fact that a woman and three men were held as suspects in the robbery of a Troy Grove roadhouse in LaSalle county two nights before the Paw Paw safe cracking.

Trained down yesterday a lottery ticket, Mrs. Ruby Teasant Parsons was arrested Tuesday night in a hotel at Maywood. The woman, who is 23 years of age, was a former resident of Mendota. She was said today to have made confessions which completely cleared up the Troy Grove roadhouse robbery and the shooting of Max Jauch, the proprietor. She was to be questioned this afternoon by Sheriff E. J. Welter in connection with the double safe blowing at Paw Paw.

Named Companions.

According to the LaSalle county Sheriff, the young woman is said to have named Joe Ghur, 23, of LaSalle, Lester Clarence Norman, alias Jack Stanley of California, an ex-convict, and Arthur Carpenter, alias Arthur Parsons, 28, of Mendota, her half-brother as the three bandits.

Ghur, Norman and Carpenter are now in jail at Sidney, Neb. charged with the theft of an automobile. An attempt will be made by Sheriff Welter of LaSalle county to have the prisoners surrendered to him, to answer to the charge of graver importance.

Seen in Paw Paw.

The day prior to the cracking of the safes in the Herman Roessler meat market and the Carl Kindlerberger garage at Paw Paw, three strange men and a young woman wearing coveralls were observed in the village, walking along the streets. They are said to have visited both the market and garage during the afternoon. About 2 o'clock the next morning the safes were blown and their contents scooped up and carried away.

With this information, Sheriff Richardson telephoned the LaSalle county sheriff and requested that the woman be questioned concerning the Paw Paw robberies but at noon had received no reply.

Sheriff Richardson stated this afternoon that he would wait until tomorrow for a reply from LaSalle county sheriff and that if no word is received by that time, that he may go to Ottawa to personally question the woman.

The woman this afternoon denied being implicated in the blowing of safes at two places of business at Paw Paw, according to a statement given to the Telegraph by Sheriff Welter, who said:

"The woman denies having been in Paw Paw the day preceding the blowing of the two safes, as reported to me this morning. However, she continues to tell of other acts and I am leaving for Nebraska to question the three men held there and will make a further investigation of the Paw Paw cases later and advise Sheriff Richardson of my findings."

Bandit Suspect Is

Taken After Chase

Springfield, Ill., July 23—(AP)—After eluding city and state police in a wild race over the state highway near here last night, Lawrence Langenbach, bandit suspect, and a girl companion were arrested here this morning.
Police chased Langenbach, the girl and another companion through the city and out over the highway, following a "tip" that a gang of bank and mail robbers were hiding out in a house near the city limits.
After police emptied the magazine of a machine gun into the car, Langenbach drove it into a ditch and he and his companions escaped through a nearby field.
The car wrecked by Langenbach was found to be a machine which was stolen from Nevada, Mo., June 9th. As a result of this discovery the man was held for federal authorities on a Dyer Act charge.
In the car, police said, was two pistols, explosives, and wearing apparel. Police found Langenbach hiding in an empty house, after tracing the girl, Rosella Wells, to her home. The other occupant of the car has not been found.

POSSIBLE CUT IN GAS COSTS
BEING STUDIEDCities Alliance Digests
Figures On Costs
Of Natural Gas

Springfield, Ill., July 23—(AP)—Possible reductions of from 20 to 35 percent in the cost of gas for domestic use, as the result of the introduction of natural gas in this state, were being discussed here today by experts employed by the People's Natural Gas Protective Alliance.
The alliance is composed of a group of Illinois cities for the purpose of obtaining all possible benefits for the public in connection with the substitution of natural gas for artificial gas. Approximately $25,000 has already been voted by the cities to carry on the work.
Officers of the Panhandle Illinois Company told the Commerce Commission this week that the cost of natural gas to the distributing companies through the state would be approximately 25 1-3 cents per 1000 cubic feet.
Engineers of distributing companies announced that at the rate quoted by the Panhandle Company, no reductions in the cost to the local consumer would be possible. Rates for manufactured gas range from 95 cents to $1.50 in different communities.
The executive committee of the Protective Alliance was informed last yesterday, however, that the cost to utilities in the various Illinois cities should not be higher than 30 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, and that the cities should insist on a proportionate reduction in retail cost.
Estimates given the Alliance were prepared by Clinton H. Montgomery, public accountant, of Kansas City. He said that the 30 cent maximum was based on all available figures and should afford a good profit to the pipe line owners.
Mr. Montgomery told the city officials that natural gas is piped into Kansas and western and northern Missouri at a cost of from 12 to 13 cents, but that the difference in cost to Illinois comes as a result of laying new pipe and building new distribution plants.

DENVER PLANS

WELCOME FOR

EPISCOPALIANS

General Convention Will Meet There In September

Denver, —(UP)—The kind of old fashioned western welcome with a "grubstake" of every service and convenience it has to offer, will be made voluntarily to delegates to the General Convention of the Episcopal Church here in September.
Denver will tell the churchmen, "you're up a mile, so smile."
To begin with, the city has placed the municipal auditorium at the disposal of the Episcopalians.
Auditorium to be Church
This building, scene of the gatherings of many national and international conventions, literally will be turned into a church. A specially constructed altar and altar rail will be installed, around which the white-robed dignitaries may gather with all the solemnity of their custom.
Not to be outdone by the city, the state has offered liberal use of its capital building to the House of Bishops for their conferences upon the questions of social and moral import.
The federal government insists upon having a part in the extravaganza of western hospitality.
Branch Post Office
A branch post office in the Scottish Rite Temple, offered as another meeting place by the Masonic fraternal order will be opened during the busy days of the convention.
All of the leading hotels are contributing courtesy services. The city's four radio stations will give daily reports for remarks of the noted speakers.
Business will cooperate in an elaborate decorative scheme. Clubs will provide guests cards and golf privileges for the distinguished visitors.
To top it all off, the churches of every denomination will issue special invitations to the visiting delegates to address their congregations during the conference.

Baby Crushed To

Death Under Truck

Chicago, July 23—(UP)—Three-year-old Jeannette Pegroll was killed today when a motor truck careened onto the sidewalk and overturned on her carriage.
Amer Washerman, driver of the truck said he steered the machine over the curb to avoid hitting an automobile.
The child's father, John Pegroll, was pushing the carriage, but was uninjured.
FRANCE NOT TO COMPETE
Paris, July 23—(AP)—The French Olympic committee today decided not to send a team to the Los Angeles games in 1932. The decision followed reports that insufficient funds were available to finance the trip of a representative team.

FLYING PREACHER CRASHED

Buffalo, N. Y., July 23—(UP)—The Rev. George U. Peltes, flying a missionary plane from New York to Alaska, crashed in landing at the Buffalo airport here today. The crash occurred at 2:57 P. M. E. D. T. Peltes was uninjured.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH HEARS

REPORTS

The annual business meeting of the Christian church was held last night at which reports were heard from all officers and department heads. Dr. C. E. Smith chairman of the official board presided. The fiscal year having been changed to end June 30th, the reports, in most cases, covered only six months. The reports, however, indicate a healthy condition of all departments. The Bible school has maintained an average attendance of over two hundred for the year. The church enrollment is 603. The C. C. Circle reported that the last note on the organ had been paid early in the year. The Ladies Aid Society and the Women's Missionary Society have had one of the best years of their history. The pastor, Rev. James A. Barnett, having been on the ground less than two months, did not make a formal report, but at the close gave a brief address in which he expressed his appreciation of the recent achievements of the congregation in acquiring the present beautiful church home and freeing it of indebtedness. He also expressed deep appreciation of Rev. Cleaver's ministry with the congregation. He outlined a five year program for the church which embodied seven aims, and which would culminate in a new education plant by the close of the five-year period. Following the business session the social committee served refreshments in the basement where a social hour was enjoyed.

REVIVAL AT ASSEMBLY.

Last night at the Assembly Park Auditorium, a large crowd heard Rev. Michael Bellister tell his story. Holding his audience spellbound, Mr. Bellister related the hardships and struggles of his boyhood days in the land of Russia and of his longing for an education, such as could not be offered in that great nation of northern Europe.
"Leaving Russia at the early age of fourteen, I came to Montreal where I obtained a job in a foundry and made the tremendous wages of $1.45 a day. I thought I was the luckiest fellow in the world, because I could remember many days working from sun-up to late at night, in Russia, my father would receive the pittance of seven cents.
"With this prosperity came a time of mad, rollicking, sinful pleasure until I was down on my back with no friends, no money, absolutely nothing. Then it was that I realized my need of a Saviour."
He proceeded then to tell how the Lord saved him, healed him, gave him a job, enabled him to progress from an educational standpoint, and lastly, to enter the ministry and be a missionary back to his own dark homeland.
Ralph Rader, brother of Paul Rader, the world-famous evangelist, was a guest at the service last night and gave several beautiful vocal renditions of his own compositions.
The Musical Ramseys were present and gave piano and vocal duets which were greatly appreciated by those in attendance.
George Dibble, the Caruso of gospel music, lead the singing and officiated during the fore-part of the service. If you have not yet heard this greatest of all gospel singers, avail yourself of the opportunity to enjoy his matchless interpretations of the old hymns tonight.
Services are held every afternoon at 2:30 and in the evening at 7:30 at the Assembly Park Auditorium on the Rock River.
"Come thou with us and be blessed."

THE BRAMBLE

THE north-east wind had blown for many a day.
The earth was brown.
The glory of the tree was shown away.
The last leaf down.

Yet as the wind and ragged cloud sped on
That lined the gloom,
I saw a flash of beauty light the road
A bramble in bloom.

Far on the wing,
Or pledge of coming splendor, the very sight
Made my heart sing.

Miss Helmick Honored Univ. Colorado Summer School Students

Dixon friends will be pleased to read the following letter written by Miss Dorothy Helmick to her father, D. E. Helmick in this city and especially of the honor which summer school students at the University of Colorado at Boulder, paid her when they organized. The letter follows:

The University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado has one of the largest summer school registrations ever recorded; 45 states and eight foreign countries are represented. The delegations have organized and it is the first time that Illinois state representatives had a majority of student attendance over Cook county and believe it or no, Dorothy Helmick, of good old Lee county, was elected president; Esther O'Donnell, Vermilion county, vice president; and Clea Neabaus, Cook county, Secretary and Treasurer. I feel highly honored and really I was so surprised, I cannot remember what I said when I thanked the 279 Illinois students for voting me the honor. Two more weeks of school and then most of the students will take the side trip to Colorado Springs and Pike Peak and then start home. I will go to southern Colorado, at DeCaleb where I will join mother at Aunt Emma's home, where I expect to put in two weeks of rest, whipping the mountain streams of all the mountain trout I can catch. Mother and I expect to start for home about August 8th, stopping at Denver for a visit with the Duncan's and then to Kansas where we will visit a week with Aunt Lou, at Randolph."

Pays Attention To Details

Jean Patou touches up the simple afternoon dress, shown at left, of black marocain, with real Valenciennes at neckline and sleeves, and tops it with knitted jersey straw. For formal afternoon wear, he makes the fine black jersey woven straw hat, upper center, with white plume camellias and a little veil. Below is a white straw hat that dips in the approved way and has a mother of pearl ornament on the crown. Black crepe royal fashions an extremely smart afternoon ensemble, right, with a blouse of opaline yellow satin. The large white bakou hat is trimmed with black.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

I am down here at Annapolis, living for the time being just across from the "Yard"—one of the most beautiful campuses in the world. The dome of the chapel rises before my windows; under this chapel is the crypt where John Paul Jones lies in a stately catafalque of black and white marble. Not far away in Bancroft Hall, is the flag that has made him immortal, on which is inscribed in large, rather crooked letters, "Don't Give Up the Ship."

Outside, history marches on and yet we must go back a bit, to 1893, and the Spanish War; for there, all white and shining and looking most innocent indeed compared to these modern battleships lies the "Reina Mercedes," captured terror of the Spanish fleet. A few hundred yards away near the sea-wall stands an unimposing pole somewhat battered near the top. A small plate tells us that it is the mast of the "Maine." There are other reminders of other wars and other victories, but it was in the present I was interested. So seeing the grey slim sides of a torpedo boat destroyer slide into dock and tie up, I lied me down to make her acquaintance.

A Miniature Education
Yes, one was allowed on board, if there is a board on such a mass of metal. Some way I got up a gangplank, very nearly perpendicular, and found myself being escorted most charmingly over the place by a young officer who found time in a terribly busy life to be nice to a middle-aged lady. I thank him publicly here. I learned how the forward gun was fired; I learned how the long floating shells ranged along the sides were swung around and released to speed toward and destroy the sharks of the sea. I learned how the smoke was controlled by turning a disc, how radio messages were sent and how generally uncomfortable life on a steel ship can be even in a beautiful summer sea—when the thermometer is up well to a hundred.

A little boy about ten years' old had gotten on with his daddy. We were the only civilians aboard. His father was a born tourist—a hasty glance around, a sigh of relief, and a "Thank Heaven that's over!" look. He took this ship like his medicine, with a gulp. In three minutes he was through with her. The boy was getting more education in a second than he'd get in school in a month. I tried to include the little chap in my own learning, for he understood a hundred times more than I did. The father was looking at his watch. "Come along, son; it's too hot here."

A World of Lessons
But "son" lingered. He would probably never be in any kind of a ship again in his life. What a story to tell the kids at home!

Alas—he had to go, whilst I could loiter and let all these technical explanations of my gallant young host roll off my stupid brain. Besides being provoked at the differences of this father, there is one more thing for me to say—the whole affair is typical of the way we allow things of the utmost interest to pass by the children. The world around them, to see, to understand is the real education after all. But we leave it all to the

Household Science Alumnae Reunion At Ill. State Fair

Springfield, Ill., July 23—(UP)—Women who attended the Household Science school at the Illinois State Fair in years gone by will be guests of honor at an alumnae reunion banquet to be held during the coming session of the school which will be held during this year's exposition. House science ideas of the "gray nineties" will be recalled at the dinner and compared with modern home economic practices as members of the state fair advisory board. According to Mrs. Shamel, newspapers are being relied on to convey invitations to the banquet to former students as records of the school do not show where they may be reached, many of them having married or moved to other localities.

There are approximately 3,000 Illinois girls and women who have attended the school since it was inaugurated in 1897 and invitations are extended to all of them to attend the banquet. If it proves a success it will be an annual feature.

Butterbaughs Were Reunited Sunday

Members of the Butterbaugh family gathered in reunion at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Reiff and family Sunday to honor Miss Myrtice Butterbaugh of LaVerne, California. Miss Butterbaugh is touring the country with the Sunshine Quartet of LaVerne college and the other members of the quartet were also present at the reunion.

In addition to the fine dinner, the quartet entertained with several delightful numbers which were greatly appreciated by those present. Among those in attendance were: Miss Myrtice Butterbaugh, Miss Ann Emmert, Miss Vera Flora, Miss Flossie Page, Lloyd Dicks, Mrs. Margaret Butterbaugh, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cordell, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Butterbaugh, Lavonne, Leone A. Fry, Bernice, Paul, Ralph, Tonest, Galen, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. The artist carried one to safety and aided in rescuing the other. She then walked over to her easel and resumed work.

Glorifying Yourself

Concepts of beauty are changing with the new hats that Paris sends us.

Interest veers from the fullfront to the profile.

Hats dip over the right eye, throw the right cheek into shadow and lift to high-light the hair on the left side, the eye, the ear and the long sweep from temple to chin.

How you look front view is not half so important as it used to be. How your profile appeals to mankind is the question.

The first thing I would suggest to any woman who keeps up with the mode, gets one of the Empress Eugenie hats and wants to look smart in it, is to get a mirror that has sides to it so she can really see herself as others see her.

Paris can shout about new hats until it is hoarse but there are many women who should never try to wear them. You might better know it yourself than have your best friend tell you.

Get a mirror and study your own profile. Do you look nice in one of these cute little things that have such a quaint dip to them? Well, if so, get one or two or three and do yourself up right to go with them.

First of all, your posture should suit this style. You need poise. You need piquancy. You need a suggestion of feminine delicacy, so don't stride like an erstwhile militant feminist. Develop the appearance of leanness and lady-like in the way you stand, sit, walk.

Second, you should go in for elegance. Elegance in the manner in which you groom yourself. To perch one of these new hats atop a costume that isn't just right or on a head and above a face not properly groomed is just too terrible.

It means more careful creaming and hairbrushing. More careful make-up and posture. It means more time spent getting beautiful. But the chances are that it will be worth it. For no one loves having a woman beautiful more than the woman herself.

Depression Affects Marriage and Divorce

Washington, July 23—(AP)—Depressing business conditions were reflected today in Census Bureau data showing sharp decreases in marriages and divorces during 1930. The matrimonial market, riding the crest of a bullish movement from 1928 to 1929, in which marriages increased 4.2 per cent, fell off 8.5 per cent in 1930.

Divorces decreased 4.2 per cent last year, falling from 201,468 in 1929 to 191,636, as compared to the 1929 marriage total of 1,232,559 and 1930's 1,128,180 wedded couples.

Nevada had the highest divorce rating, 28.67 per 1000 population, but she also led the country with 67 marriages per 1000, while the national marriage average was only 9.2 per thousand.

There were 5.9 marriages in the United States for each divorce.

What Paris is Wearing

By K. DORSAY

PARIS—Many are the uses of the handbag jewel these days. No longer is it the simple clasp it used to be—just a decoration hiding the more utilitarian fastening beneath. Clasps are more than their name indicates nowadays—every clasp has become a safety clasp that can be opened easily only by the initiated.

Other than these, jeweled clasps seen in Paris this year are of a button variety, following out some definite decorative scheme. Witness the bag in the sketch, with its asymmetric lines carried out by the slashed lapis settings. The two buttons serve a useful purpose—they are genuine buttons, combined with deep metal stems to pass through large button-holes. The carved portion at the upper corner fits over both sides of the bag.

The bag itself is of navy blue, the lapis settings are shot with color, and the bag lining is red—an example of the combinations of color used by Paris right now. It is carried with a costume that includes navy frock, red belt and white lingerie collar and cuffs.

Miss Christensen To Wed "Pat" Caraway

Harriett Christensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berndt Christensen of Oregon, will become the bride of Cecil "Pat" Caraway, young Texan pitcher of the Chicago White Sox, according to the recent announcement of the betrothal. The date of the wedding has not yet been set but it is believed that it will not be held until later in the season.

Miss Christensen was graduated from Oregon high school and has made her home in Chicago the past three years. THE BRAMBLE
The north-east wind had blown for many a day.
The earth was brown.
The glory of the tree was shorn away.
The last leaf down.

Yet as the wind and ragged cloud sped on
That lined the gloom,
I saw a flash of beauty light the road
A bramble in bloom.

Far on the wing,
Or pledge of coming splendor, the very sight
Made my heart sing.

Miss Helmick Honored Univ. Colorado Summer School Students

Dixon friends will be pleased to read the following letter written by Miss Dorothy Helmick to her father, D. E. Helmick in this city and especially of the honor which summer school students at the University of Colorado at Boulder, paid her when they organized. The letter follows:

"The University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado, has one of the largest summer school registrations ever recorded; 45 states and eight foreign countries are represented. The delegations have organized and it is the first time that Illinois down state representatives had a majority of student attendance over Cook county and believe it or no, Dorothy Helmick, of good old Lee county, was elected president; Esther O'Donnell, Vermillion county, vice president; and Cleta Neahaus, Cook county, Secretary and Treasurer. I feel highly honored and really I was so surprised, I cannot remember what I said when I thanked the 279 Illinois students for voting me the honor. Two more weeks of school and then most of the students will take the side trip to Colorado Springs and Pikes Peak and then start home. I will go to southern Colorado, at DeCarbon where I will join mother at Aunt Erma's home, where I expect to put in two weeks of rest, whipping the mountain streams of all the mountain trout I can catch. Mother and I expect to start for home about August 8th, stopping at Denver for a visit with the Duncan's and then to Kansas where we will visit a week with Aunt Lou, at Randolph."

The morning will be spent in a tour of the farm with Mrs. McCormick as the guide. A picnic luncheon will be served. The meeting is an informal one and subjects of vital interest will probably be discussed.

Stauffer and wife, who resided in and near Polo, Ill., for many years. There were about 50 in attendance. Each family brought well filled baskets and at the noon hour a bountiful cafeteria dinner was served in a beautiful shaded spot amid the wonderful scenery of this very attractive state park.

HE REFUSED TO GET RICH.

The utter falsity of the hoary old assertion that men cannot be expected to do great work if they are not lured on by the gleam of great monetary rewards was never more clearly demonstrated than by the life of the late Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock, who died recently after years of service on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Babcock invented the test by which the amount of butter fat in milk and cream can be determined. He could have patented the process and made millions for himself. If it were true that men are moved only by self-interest he would have done so without hesitation.

But he didn't. He gave his process to the nation free. He enriched the dairy industry by millions; himself he did not enrich at all. He proved—though none but the blind need proof of it—that the right kind of man can and will do great work without thinking of the reward.

FOR SIMPLER GOVERNMENT.

Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's complaint about the multiplicity of governmental organizations in America raises a question that is bound to engage more and more of our consideration in the next decade or so.

In New York state alone, as he points, there are no fewer than 13,544 separate, independent governmental units, all of which can and do levy and spend tax money. One citizen can live under the dominance of ten tax levying and spending units.

Obviously, some sort of sweeping reorganization is in order. An enormous amount of simplification of the governmental structure could be effected, and with it there should be great economies in expenditure.

So far the ordinary citizen has not worried about it greatly. But taxes continue to rise, in most places, year by year. Let them rise only a little higher and the ordinary citizen will discover that he has a direct and powerful interest in simplified governmental machinery.

TWO LIKABLE FLYERS.

Somehow, the more one sees of Post and Gatty, the round-the-world flyers, the better one likes them.

There was something especially appealing about Post's remark that he has had more than enough trans-oceanic flights to last him the rest of his life. His explanation that one simple flight back to Oklahoma will satisfy his urge for long-distance flying for a long time to come strikes a responsive chord.

After all, there were thrills for the two men on that first flight that they will never be able to duplicate. Flying over the Atlantic once, for all its dangers, can be fun; doing it again can be downright foolhardiness. Post and Gatty are perfectly ready to admit it. Their countrymen will like them all the better for the admission.

WHERE HELP IS NEEDED.

The arrival of more and more detailed reports of suffering in the Pennsylvania soft coal mining areas makes it apparent that the miners and their families are having a dreadful time. It is not pleasant to read of families making a meal on dandelion greens, or to hear a doctor predict that many children are actually apt to die of starvation.

The Red Cross has ruled that it cannot act to relieve the situation because it has to confine its services to natural disasters like floods, tornadoes and earthquakes.

However, that does not mean that the country can ignore the plight of the miners. Americans do not usually sit back complacently to let women and children starve to death. If the Red Cross cannot act, it is time to form some relief organization that can. The suffering in the coal fields must be relieved.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Travel Man explained how rice, when under water, came up nice. The Tinymites watched the plowing from a dry spot right nearby. Then wee Clowny said, "That ox is tame and, if you will let me, I'll be game to ride his back while he is plowing. Tell me, may I try?"

"We will see," replied the Travel Man. "I will arrange it, if I can." And then he kindly asked the man who owned the ox. The man said, "Yes!" The fine animal was driven near and Clowny, with no thought of fear, hopped on his back and, as he rode, he cried, "I am good, I guess."

The others also tried their luck and once the ox almost got stuck while plodding through a real soft spot. He squirmed and splashed around. Poor Copy, who was on its back, said, "Gee, I guess he is off his track." But soon the ox was quite all right and on much safer ground.

When everyone had had a ride the Travel Man exclaimed, "We tried to think of something else to see and now I have a plan. Pine-apples grow not far from here and this is just the time of year when they are nice and ripe. Come on, we will find some, if we can."

They reached a great big plantation and one Tiny shouted, "This is grand! Just look how neat the rows are made and, my, the fruit is big!" I think it would be very nice if we could each have one big slice. In fact, I'd be so tickled, I would almost dance a jig."

And then they spied a Japanese out in the garden, on his knees. The Travel Man explained that the Japs worked on most of the farms. And then he called the Jap and he said, "This little fellow must be fed. The Jap jumped up and brought a big pineapple in his arms. (The Tinymites meet a strange old man in the next story.)

TODAY IS THE ANNIVERSARY

PLEA TO TROOPS

On July 23, 1917, the executive council of the All-Russia Workmen's and Soldiers' and Peasants' organizations issued a proclamation to the Russian troops urging them to "save the fatherland." The proclamation read in part:

"Fellow soldiers: One of our armies has wavered, its regiments have fled before the enemy. Who is responsible for this humiliation? The responsibility rests with those who have spread discord in the army and shaken its discipline, with those who at a time of danger disobeyed the military commands and wasted time in fruitless discussions and disputes."

"Enough of words. The time has come to act without hesitation. We have acknowledged the provisional government. With the government lies the salvation of the revolution. We have acknowledged its unlimited authority and unlimited power. Its commands must be law. "Fellow soldiers: You are being watched by those who work for Russia and by the whole world. The ruin of the Russian revolution spells ruin for all. Summon up all your manhood, your perseverance and sense of discipline and save the fatherland."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof.—Romans 6:12.

Sin is the insurrection and rebellion of the heart against God; it turns from Him, and turns against Him; it takes up arms against God.—Richard Alleine.

NAVY PURCHASES RADIUM TO TEST SHIP CASTINGS

The Recent Discoveries Of Faulty Stern Posts Leads To Action

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, July 23.—(UP)—Concerned over two important defects discovered in its prized 10,000-ton treaty cruisers, the Navy Department has decided to use radium in detecting vital weaknesses in ships parts such as recently developed under battle tests, it was learned today.

The Navy has purchased a half-gram of radium for regular use after successfully trying it out in discovering hidden defects in the stern post castings of five of the eight big cruisers of the 1924 program, which cracked under the strain of battle tests recently.

Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams says it is not officially determined whether faulty casting or faulty design was responsible. Officers under him attribute the cracks partly to both causes, that is, bad design which failed to allow for internal weaknesses in the casting of such huge blocks. In any event the stern posts are being replaced with much heavier ones. In the cases of the Chester and the Augusta, the contractor bears the cost of about $18,000 each under the six months guarantee against defective material.

Naval constructors also have found it advisable to make alterations in all eight cruisers of this group which showed unsatisfactory rolling qualities making gunfire less effective and contributing, according to an officer to a mishap in which the topmast of the Salt Lake City was snapped off in a high sea some time ago.

Whether these difficulties are due to the normal hazards of naval design, as naval officers insist, or to incompetent work is a question which may be decided only by investigation.

For Continuous Building
Secretary Adams regards the difficulties as indicating the desirability of continuous construction when defects could be caught, ship by ship instead of construction in bunches when any faults in the master design are embodied in all ships.

Adams denies the jerky rolling qualities seriously interfered with gunfire.

It was explained that none of these defects are involved in the new 15-ton cruiser program of 1929, seven of which are now building, since they are based on entirely new design.

Investigating the cause of the cracks which appeared in the stern post castings of the 5 cruisers, the Navy Department borrowed radium from Johns Hopkins University to make Gamma tests of the interior condition of the metal. The Gamma ray will penetrate 16 inches of steel.

Internal cracks were discovered inside the huge castings, which are about 14 feet high and 8 feet long. To prevent repetition of such costly replacements which involve docking a ship and tearing out the stern post through at least two decks, the Navy has bought the half-gram of radium.

It is equal to about half a small thimble full and cost approximately $50,000 according to current quotations.

The radium is used to detect interior flaws in a steel casting in the same way a dentist used an X-ray to discover conditions inside a tooth. The radium is placed on one side of the metal and the Gamma rays penetrate it to make a photograph on a sensitized plate on the opposite side. When internal cracks or pockets exist, a dark spot shows on the Gamma ray photograph. This method reveals flaws in the more vulnerable and comparatively thin lower portion of the casting.

Naval officers insisted the new cruisers are superior on the whole to anything yet built.

Carlstrom To Speak At Franklin Sunday

Attorney General Carlstrom of Illinois is to be the speaker next Sunday afternoon, July 26, at the Franklin Grove Assembly Grounds in connection with the Sunday afternoon program which are being presented by the Methodist churches of the Joliet-Dixon district. These Sunday afternoon programs are meeting with a splendid response and the part of the churches participating, and next Sunday afternoon will turn out a large audience to hear one of the State's most popular speakers.

Mr. Carlstrom is well known throughout the state as an orator and special interest will be added to his visit at Franklin Grove next Sunday because of the recent announcement of his candidacy for the gubernatorial office of the State of Illinois.

Preliminary to the address there will be a half hour concert by the Kaneville, Ill. band, which feature is in itself a special attraction. A special vocal number will also be rendered and the congregation song service will be led by Rev. Amos Thornberg, pastor of the Fourth Street Methodist church of Sterling, Illinois.

The program will begin at 2:45 P. M., and the public of this community is invited.

THAT every citizen should heartily support any plan that is for the good and the glory of the home city. Development does not come unassisted.

If you don't keep your eyes open for the opportunities that pass your way, they will go on to some other city.

Some other city is always trying to entice them their way. Cities must always be made attractive to people with capital before they can be developed very far.

New industries won't tarry long in looking over a prospective city as a location unless living and business conditions are good.

A city may have all the advantages in the world, but it can't get anything or anywhere until it shows a progressive spirit.

As long as a city lacks that spirit and where the people show a lack of loyalty to their city, just so long will a city stand still or progress backward.

In many cities the citizens seem to lack an appreciation of the worth of the home city.

Lack of home pride will hold any city back.

Lee Co. Farm Bureau Affairs

Miss Thelma Prytherch, office secretary for the Home Bureau, Mary Prytherch, office secretary for the Lee County Service Company, and their sister, Sarah, are spending a week's vacation at Devil's Lake, in Wisconsin, this week.

C. E. Yale, Farm Adviser attended a limestone meeting in Chicago the last of the week.

E. Phillip Ollman, one of our Farm Bureau members living near Amboy has made arrangements to move the coming year to the Warren A. Shippert farm on route 2 near Dixon.

If farmers in Lee County are interested in securing limestone over the C. B. & Q., and having it unloaded along the track near their farms, they should get in touch with the Farm Bureau. Arrangements can be made with the railroad company whereby this can be done, provided we can make up a train of 10 cars.

Walter Scipp of Harmon had a very narrow escape of having his combine destroyed last week, when some stray caught fire under the exhaust pipe of the tractor setting fire to the stubble and the carburetor.

By quick work they were able to check the fire on the combine before any damage was done. Some two or three acres of stubble were burned over before the fire was fully checked.

F. W. Peckham, General Insurance Agent for the Country Life Insurance in Lee County together with one of his special agents, John Bryant of Earlville, attended a meeting of the DeKalb Agricultural Association Executive Committee last Wednesday evening.

O. O. Miller of Franklin Grove is having some trouble with his cattle which he had shipped in, having lost a few of them. He has been vaccinating them with Hemorrhagic Septicemia Bacterin secured at the Farm Bureau Office.

Preparations are still going forward for the joint picnic of the Farm Bureau, the Home Bureau, the Service Company and the Insurance Department, to be held in Lowell Park, Dixon. Don't forget the date, August 26.

LONDON FEELS DEPRESSION FOR IT'S "SEASON"

Signs Evident on Every Hand in Famous Rendezvous

LONDON.—(UP)—The London "season," a word that has for many years served as a magnet in drawing high society leaders from all over the world to this great metropolis, is the latest victim of the economic depression.

Hotel managers, shop keepers, owners of luxury flats and expensive cafes in the West End are wearing long faces. The usual society haunts are only partly filled, the purse is thinner and the tips are smaller.

Signs of the "season's" failure are evident on every hand. Jermyn street, popularly and accurately referred to as the most expensive thoroughfare in the world, has discarded its silk topper for a cap. Lonely taxicabs cruise the narrow street, eyeing likely fares.

The manager of one apartment house told the United Press that it was the worst "season" he had known in years.

One of the most exclusive cafes on Jermyn street, where an ordinary dinner, with moderately priced wine, is served at $17 to $20 for two, is rarely more than half filled, whereas a year ago table space was at a premium.

Up until the normal opening of the "season" the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker all hummed a song made popular during the war, adding only one word:

"Oh, the RICH YANKS are coming, the RICH YANKS are coming."

But the rich Yanks didn't come, at least, most of them didn't, and the paucity of American dollars has been keenly felt.

It was the American "newly rich," who rented elaborate country homes at unheard-of prices, went shooting Scotland, and, despite lavish and costly entertaining, always remained only on the fringe of society, whom they "plucked."

BOY'S NECK BROKEN

Flint, Mich., July 22.—(UP)—A Verne Fortin, 16-year-old high school student, has been walking around for two days with a broken neck, physicians said today.

Young Fortin was injured Sunday when he dived into four feet of water in a swimming pool and struck his head on the bottom. His injury did not appear serious and it was not until last night that a doctor was called to examine him.

"It is the most remarkable case I ever saw," said Dr. Leon M. Bogart. The boy will have to wear a plaster cast for 12 weeks.

FARMERS USE SPLIT CROPS TO BEAT DROUGHT

Mississippians Plan to Sell Something Each Month

Jackson, Miss.—(UP)—Mississippi farmers this year are going to "sell something every month of the year."

All over the state tillers of the soil are adopting a program sponsored by agricultural officials which calls for crops to be ready at given and scattered periods, whereby the agrarians will receive practically a monthly increment.

"The farmers probably won't get rich with the system they are going in for this year, but at least they will have something coming in from time to time and not just live a half-moaned, half-broke year, says J. Ed Ruff, agricultural extension agent.

Corn, foodstuffs, and garden vegetables are being produced over the state in larger quantities than ever before, so that even if the farmer can't sell, he still will be able to "eat."

Wide-spread diversified farming has become a reality following the drought of last year that brought disaster to the Mississippi farmer, according to Ruff. Farmers are carrying out the "live at home" idea and are cashing in on the recommendation of extension forces to balance their farm program with livestock.

Weak Markets Lessened
Through the "every month" plan, the danger of weak markets will be lessened, Ruff believes, by providing the farmer an almost continuous income that will catch some high and some low markets during the 12 months.

The average price received for his products should provide a worthwhile margin of profit, and the year-around program will give work for farming forces that heretofore, under the one-crop system, have remained idle nearly half of the year.

DEKALB OFFICER IS MADE ACTING POLICE SERGEANT

He Replaces Sterling Man Pending Outcome Of Federal Hearing

(Telegraph Special Service)
DeKalb, July 23—State Patrol Officer O. N. Larson of this city, one of the oldest members of the state highway police force in point of service, was late yesterday afternoon, appointed acting sergeant of state police for this district to replace Oliver "Buck" Kempster of Sterling, suspended late last week following his indictment on charges of violation of the national prohibition law. Word of the appointment of Larson to acting sergeant was contained in a telegram to him from Walter Moody, chief of the state highway police force.
The appointment of State Officer Larson meets with the approval of the young man's many friends throughout the district. Upon the indictment of Kempster and subsequent announcement of his suspension, pending the outcome of the federal charges, many of Officer Larson's friends started working in an effort to have him appointed acting sergeant. His record as a state officer was greatly in his favor, Larson being known throughout the state force as one of the most capable of officers. His ability is not only locally known but is known throughout the state.
Veteran in Service
State Officer Larson became a member of the state highway force nine years ago this fall, being one of the five oldest men in the state highway service in the state. Kempster, who has been suspended, became an officer five months previous to Larson. For some time Larson traveled alone. Later State Officer Kenneth Church, now at Dixon, was stationed with him here, and during the past few years I. L. Elmendorf has been his traveling partner on the highways of this district.
Born in this city, Sergeant Larson has spent the greater part of his life in this community. A few years before the United States entered the World War he joined the United States marines, serving on the soil of United States possessions much of the time. His period of service expired during the World War and he remained in the marines until after the armistice was signed, seeing considerable service overseas. His experience as a marine was wonderful training for the work in which he later became interested, that of being a member of the state highway police force.
Meeting Next Tuesday
Other than the information in the telegram, Sergeant Larson has received no other details relative to his appointment. He thinks, however, that DeKalb will become district headquarters. Plans were being made today by the state officer for a district meeting here on next Tuesday. He wrote to Chief Moody today and asked him to be present, if possible, for the meeting planned for Tuesday of next week.

Barbers Assn. Is Organized In Dixon

The Dixon Barbers' Association, an organization which was perfected Tuesday evening at a meeting of the townsmen, elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year: President—C. C. Stacey. Vice Pres.—William G. Ford. Sec.—Treas.—Charles Willier. Rec. Sec.—John Marsall.
Entertainment committee—Tom Mitchell, chairman; C. Gibson, W. R. Knott, H. W. Taylor, William Wickcy.
The organization is formed for social purposes and the first move toward that end was the organizing of a soft ball team of which William Eckert is manager. The team is anxious to play their opening game Monday evening and the management is now busy booking a series of contests. It is expected that a golf foursome will also be organized from the barbers of the city to engage in contests this fall. Later in the season, a picnic will be held.

Reno Divorce Not Good In California

Los Angeles, July 23—(UP)—Reno divorces obtained by Californians through temporary residence in Nevada are worthless upon return of the parties to this state, it was held in a decision by Superior Judge Arthur Keetch.
Judge Keetch granted an annulment of Ida Fischer's marriage to Arthur Fischer on the ground that she married Fischer while still the wife of Bernard Boulinsky, although she had obtained a Reno divorce from Boulinsky.
This ruling apparently substantiated recent statements by Samuel Kahn, prominent Los Angeles attorney, who quoted court decisions to prove that Reno divorces are invalid when residence there is not bona-fide.
OHIO LEGIONNAIRES TO AID DETROIT IN ENTERTAINMENT
Detroit, Mich. —(UP)—Ohio will join Michigan in entertaining the thousands of Legionnaires who will come to Detroit, September, 21-24, for the national American Legion Convention.
Legionnaires of Northern Ohio have announced plans to hold numerous impromptu receptions for delegates passing through their state en route here.
Ohio Legion officials predict that between 10,000 and 15,000 Legionnaires from the Buckeye state will attend.

MEET LAURA INGALLS! Here's a Set of Bright, Snappy Impressions of the Taut, Self-reliant Girl Who Hopes to Be First to Fly Alone Across the Atlantic

By JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer
New York, (NEA Service)—Miss Laura Ingalls, heir-apparent to the feminine "Lone Eagle" title, is 23 years old, stands 5 feet 4, weight 125 pounds—and all of it is sturdy independence.
Orphan. Father dead since she was a baby. Mother dead for several years. One brother, who now thinks she is crazy because she keeps on flying.
Doesn't diet. Hasn't flapper figure. More like the rounded short, continental feminine figure. Tapering arms and legs. Very, very slender wrists and ankles. Little feet. Firm, hard, strong little hands that grip and shake yours like a man's.
Unruly heavy chestnut hair. A sturdy natural wave. Few gray hairs over ears. Might be sunburned. Long-short bob. Parts it on the side. Looks wind-blown. Not letting it grow. Just no time for barber.
Blue eyes. Glint of cold gray in them should anyone ask her about her proposed Paris hop, which she figures is nobody's business but her own.
No make-up except a little lipstick. Rather sweet mouth. Dimple in chin. Contrast to her brusque manner, hard voice, bustling stride. Healthy sunburned look, hearty out-of-doors mien.
Wears feminine sports clothes when not flying. White coveralls when she is. Likes beige, blues, brown. Even under coveralls she wears frilly, feminine bouses. She likes lace stockings. Wears them under coveralls. Also beige two-eyelot oxford with medium high heel and grosgrain ribbon ties.
Never without her when flying. Wears them on the street too. She wears them big. Black, beige or white. Pulls them on without looking in mirror. Wears rim on outside. Never bothers for artistic effect.
Consumed with flying. Lives near field. Spent last winter near Roosevelt. Spring and summer at Lambert Field, near St. Louis.
Not the least bit domestic. Hates to waste time even making own bed. In New York stays in suite of bedroom, sitting room, bath at American Woman's Association, of which she is a member. Cannot cook. Doesn't want to. Throws lace silk stockings away when they get runs.
Wears one ring. No necklaces. No pins. No gew-gaws. Eats anything. Not fussy. Eats when hungry. Matter-of-fact masculine habit of not noticing food much.
Might be Irish. Looks it. Is Welsh, Dutch, Scotch. Welsh ancestors lived where sea beat in on them. Imaginative. Fearless.
Self-remittance comes from self support for years. Worked as stenographer to pay aviation tuition. First was vaudeville actress.
Consumed now with preparations. Taut like net of finely strung wire. But not quivery "like a woman."
Everything subordinated to flying. Comforts, clothes, amusements of no importance now. Lot of hard work to do. Nothing else counts. Phone calls abrupt, business-like. No joking. No time for trifling. Atlantic must be flown by a woman. Figures she's the woman to do it!

FOUR BRITISH WAR MEMORIALS TO BE DEDICATED

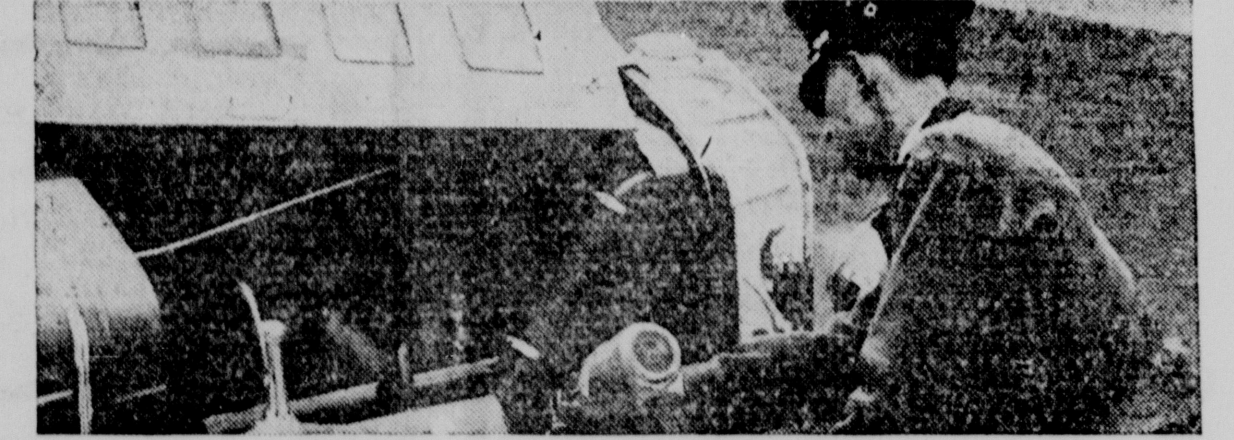

Monuments Honor Fallen Heroes 17 Years Later

Arras, France —(UP)—Just 17 years after Great Britain's entry into the World War, on August 4, at 10:15 A. M., four British memorials will be dedicated to the unknown dead. The memorials are at Loos in Gohelle, Vis in Artois, Pozieres in Somme, and Louverval in Nord.
The dedication at Loos will be presided over by the British novelist Rudyard Kipling, whose son was among the unidentified dead in that district. Buglers of the Royal Irish Guards will sound "The Last Post," and "Reveille" before the monument bearing the names of 20,693 men listed as missing in the battle of Loos, the Lys estuary, and Bethune. The memorial is the work of the architect Herbert Backer. There are 1,772 British and 28 Canadian dead buried in the cemetery there.
The memorial at Vis was started by the same Canadian corps that recaptured the town in August, of 1918. The dedication will be attended by the prefect of Pas de Calais, several army corps and the mayors of the towns in the battle district. School children will sing the French national anthem. The memorial has inscribed on it the names of 9,903 men who were reported missing after the advance in Picardy on the Hindenburg line and after the final advance. In the new cemetery there are 1,749 British, 582 Canadian, six Australian and two South African war dead.
The memorial at Pozieres bears the names of 14,690 men of the Fifth Army who disappeared after the big battle of the Somme, between March 21 and August 7, 1918. The dedication will be presided over by General Horace Smith-Dorrien and Fabian Ware. The Sherwood Foresters, General Dorrien's regiment, will sound the "Last Post." There are 1,908 British, 690 Australian, 16 Canadian and one German war dead in the cemetery at Pozieres.
The cemetery of Louverval, near Cambrai, is the site of the memorial to the 7,048 missing in the battle of Cambrai, in November and December of 1917. The memorial ceremony will be presided over by Sir Louis Vaughan, representing General Lord Byng of Vimy. The prefects of the three departments of Nord, Pas de Calais and Somme have been invited to attend the services at which speeches will be made by Sir Louis and representatives of the French government. The cemetery of Louverval is a small one, where 118 British, four Australian and two New Zealand soldiers are buried.

Gypsy Tunes Are Menaced By Jazz

Paris —(UP)—Modern jazz has threatened the famous songs of the Russian gypsies, and Mme. Olga Vadina, one of the best known contemporary singers of genuine tzigan folk songs, is making a nationwide appeal to save these melodies from oblivion and destruction.
Mme. Vadina will appear in New York this winter to give Americans an opportunity of judging the difference between the real old gypsy tunes and the vulgarized gypsy cafe music of today.
"The fascinating music of the Russian gypsies and their inimitable art in rendering its wild pathos were menaced by modernizing forces, like so many cultural assets of the Old World," she said. "Happily, a great musician has come to the front in Russia to save gypsy music and restore it to its original beauty and depth. The savior is Krutchinine, the celebrated gypsy composer, singer and conductor, who is devoting his life to the preservation of the old tzigan music and to teaching the modern gypsies of today to cherish their artistic heritage."

TWO SPECIAL DRY AGENTS KILLED BY INDIANA 'LEGGER

Slayer Was Captured Four Hours After Shooting Federal Men

Port Wayne, Ind., July 23—(AP)—Four hours after he shot and killed two federal prohibition agents to escape a trap they laid for him, Geo. Adams, reputed Fort Wayne bootlegger, and former convict, was captured by local police early today.
Cornered on a road at the south edge of the city with a load of liquor the agents had ordered last night, Adams shot and killed at close range John J. Wilson, 40, of Rockwell City, Ia., ranking special agent in the Indianapolis prohibition enforcement office. Wilson was said by his companions to have been unarmed.
Then, wounded in the neck and cheek by shots from the gun of Walter M. Gilbert, 33, special agent from Cincinnati, Adams returned the fire and Gilbert fell, fatally wounded. He died an hour later in a Fort Worth hospital.
A special federal prohibition informer, C. E. Green of Portland, Ind., and another special agent, Oliver J. Gettle of Indianapolis, who said Adams "seemed to be crazy," dove for cover to escape the fire from Adams' gun. Both were cut by barred wire fencing in a culvert into which they dropped.
Take Without Fight.
Adams made his escape, and a wide search was organized local police, tipped off by federal agents, captured him without a shot being fired early today as he drove up to the home here of Frank V. Kenier-ski. He was placed in the Allen county jail.
Lloyd Krouse, to whose home 12 miles south of here Adams drove after the shooting, was held as a material witness. Krouse banded Adams' neck and then drove him in Krouse's car to Port Wayne where they were taken into custody.
Major Howard Long, Deputy Prohibition Administrator for Northern Indiana, arrived today to open an official investigation of the shooting. Arrival of Oliver M. Loomis, Federal District Attorney for Northern Indiana, was awaited before Adams will States Commissioner William D. Rummel.
Wilson had been in government service three years, and had served at Springfield, Ill., Chicago and Detroit, Mich. Gilbert, or the Cincinnati office, was known in Indianapolis, where he testified last year in the government's case against ten Indianapolis policemen charged with conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Buffalo, New York. —(UP)—The depression has hit hitch-hiking by airplane, according to a South Bend Indiana, youth who "dropped in" at the local airport.
Tipton Worthington, a "grease monkey," was en route to New York City.
"There used to be a time," he told airport officials, "when I could make a thousand miles a day. Now I am lucky to make 500. But it is a great way to see the country, and beats auto hitch-hiking all hollow."

Round Up Promoters Of Strike Disorders

Pittsburgh, July 22—(AP)—A round-up of men blamed for the strike disorders in the western Pennsylvania, West Virginia and eastern Ohio bituminous fields during the past few days, closed in today.
The little red brick court house in Wellsburg, W. Va., became a heavily guarded jail late last night, after 76 men were arrested in connection with an attack on a group of 50 miners at the McKinleyville mine of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Coal Company yesterday.
The prisoners were removed to a court room and a jury room when it was discovered the Brooke county jail was not large enough to accommodate all of them.
Authorities said tentative charges of violation of the Redman Act—attempt to riot—had been lodged against the men and that they believed those responsible for yesterday's attack were among the prisoners. A fusillade of bullets cut into a group of 50 miners. One was injured.

Insko Recovering, Will Not Be Killed

Chicago, July 22—(AP)—Just when it appeared that his injuries were hopeless, Insko, sturdy thoroughbred owned by Griffith Watkins, has made what appears to be a winning comeback in his fight for life. Dr. Joseph M. Kaiser, veterinarian who has been treating the fleet son of Sir Gallahad III, today said the latest x-rays of his leg fractures showed surprising recovery and that it now was planned to ship the horse to a Kentucky farm to recuperate.

"If he continues his progress, we have every reason to expect that he will be back racing again," said Dr. Kaiser.
Insko, insured by Lloyd's of London for $50,000, was injured more than a month ago at Washington Park.

Obscure Astronomer Discovered Comet

Pasadena, Calif., July 23—(UP)—An obscure, amateur Japanese astronomer, M. Nagata of Brawley, Calif., has discovered a new comet, it was announced at the Mt. Wilson observatory.
The comet was described to be in the constellation of Leo, not far from the star Rho Leonis, and in the general direction of Mars, although about ten degrees to the right of that planet.
The comet will be named after Nagata, who called it to the attention of the Mt. Wilson scientists in an apologetic telegram in which he begged pardon for wasting their time but asked if it was possible for him to have located a new comet with his small telescope.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR BIG SAFETY CONGRESS IN OCT.

Achievements Of Score Of Years Of Activity
To Be Theme

Chicago, July 23.—(Special)—The achievements of 20 years of organized safety throughout the world will be reviewed October 12 to 16, when approximately 7,000 delegates gather here for the Twentieth Annual Safety Congress and Exposition, it is announced. Headquarters for the huge gathering will be the Stevens, world's largest hotel.

The roster of speakers alone, comprising more than 350 safety authorities would make a fair sized convention and the 150 scheduled sessions will make the Congress a miniature "safety university." All phases of safety—in industry, in the home, on the streets and highways, in the schools on the water and in the air—will be covered in these sessions.

The purpose of the Congress will be to discuss the safety problems of the nation and to devise practical means of lessening America's mounting toll of accidental injury and death. This toll reached its high peak in history last year, accidents causing 99,000 deaths and 10,000,000 injuries. The economic cost of the accidents, most of which could have been prevented, has been estimated at ten billion dollars.

Sessions Run Concurrently
Separate programs have been arranged for more than a score of different industries. While it will be necessary to hold a good many of these sessions concurrently, that delegates will be able to attend both those relating to their own and allied industries. The Stevens is the only hotel which is able to house all the sessions under one roof.

With the motor vehicle accident toll reaching new heights each year, it is only natural that much consideration will be given to this problem during the Congress. Both the morning and afternoon sessions are planned for the entire five days and a large number of traffic authorities will appear on the programs. A traffic school is scheduled for each morning of the Congress. Plans are also under way for an exhibition of traffic equipment and correct traffic procedure in Grant Park. It is also probable that a "Safety Lane" will be in operation where motorists may have their cars checked for mechanical defects without charge.

U. S. Navy To Exhibit
A psychology class will be conducted early each morning for the benefit of those delegates who deal with the personal problems of industry. It is to be conducted by Dr. Harold S. Hubert, widely known psychiatrist and psychologist.

One of the features of the Congress will be a mammoth display of the latest mechanical devices that have been developed in the interest of industrial and public safety.

Th U. S. Navy is planning an unusual exhibition which will be the center of attraction in the huge exhibit hall. Included in the exhibition will be a model of the new ZR-4 zeppelin now being completed at Akron showing the various safety features of this huge airship.

End Of Trail Of Vengeance Nears

New York, July 23.—(UP)—Giuseppe Sutura, a Sicilian, was near the end of a trail of vengeance today—a trail that in eight years has led all over Italy and to the United States. Sutura is seeking the last of a group of five assassins who killed his brother, Francisco, in 1923 in Gipeilino, Sicily. Four already have been turned over to authorities; two have been executed and two are now in prison.

"Only one remains, and I am on his trail," Sutura said.

Knowledge of the Vendetta which caused the slaying of his brother and an attempt on his own life two weeks later was revealed yesterday when Sutura had Francisco Fontana, of Brooklyn, arrested on a charge of attempted murder. Fontana was held for hearing on extradition to Italy.

Fontana was one of the group that attempted to assassinate him, Sutura charged.

Scrapping the Tools of Banditry

So. American Expedition Gets Rare Specimens

Washington, D. C.—After traversing the world's most unusual river circuit over the famous Casiquiare "arm," connecting the vast Amazon and Orinoco systems, and crossing the Equator three times, Ernest G. Holt, leader of an expedition for the National Geographic Society into northern Brazil and southern Venezuela, has just returned to Washington with his scientific assistants, Charles T. Agostini and Emmett R. Blake.

Accompanied Boundary Co.
On the trip which occupied ten months, the party collected more than 3,000 specimens of birds, some wholly new to science, in addition to hundreds of mammals and plants and a large number of photographs recording types of natives, scenic beauties, and geographic features of the great inland forest region of South America. By special permission the expedition travelled for three months with the Brazilian-Venezuelan Boundary Commission and was enabled to penetrate some areas not before traversed by scientists. The scientific collections they brought back to Washington have been presented by the National Geographic Society to the National Museum.

A complete chain of types of river craft, showing in reverse the developments of many years, was employed by the expedition in reaching its far inland objective. Primitive modern steamers carried the travelers to Manaos, 800 miles up the Amazon. From there a smaller steamer took them 400 miles further upstream to Santa Isabel. Above Santa Isabel the stream was too shallow for steamers and the party transferred to barges lashed to a light-draft gasoline launch. Later it was necessary to use flat-bottom boats with outboard motors, and finally dug-out canoes propelled by native poles. Camps were established at intervals and overland trips made with the assistance of the expedition's large group of native bearers.

After poing up the Casiquiare the party entered the Orinoco and descended it through Venezuela using boats and steamers of increasing size. The unique Casiquiare, Mr. Holt said, is not a seeping stream through a swamp nor a seasonal stream but a lusty river flowing continually out of the Orinoco. At the outlet of the "arm" of the Orinoco, as the Venezuelans call it, the Casiquiare is about 100 feet wide and the Orinoco several times that width. The outflowing stream drains away about one-third of the flow of the parent river, Mr. Holt estimates.

Explored Unmapped Mount.
Along the right bank of the Orinoco, a hundred or so miles below the Casiquiare, the party explored an isolated mountain, Cerro Yamacana, that rises sheerly from the plains. It does not appear on any of the usual maps of Venezuela. The big mountain proved to be an exceptionally valuable collecting ground since its slopes through 3,500 feet provided various temperature and floral zones. Nearly one-third of the collection of birds was made on its slopes and top.

The expedition found the region near the boundary sparsely settled with natives and with only a handful of whites, chiefly traders in balata, and kind of rubber. Native tribes were observed eating monkeys, alligators, alligator eggs, parrots, wild cats, and the winged forms of leaf-cutting ants. The Americans found that the monkey meat and parrots made pleasant additions to their menus. One experiment with fried ants and alligator meat, however, was reported to be unenjoyed.

The task of separating and analyzing the huge amount of data obtained by the expedition, and the work of classifying the several thousand specimens will occupy the scientists for some time. The results will be published by the National Geographic Society as a contribution to the world's knowledge of South America.

Daily Health Talk

THE CHILD'S APPETITE

The eagerness of the average parent to have their children grow as strong and be as healthy as possible gives rise to a number of behavior problems among which is the child's refusal to eat.

The child may refuse to eat one or more individual items of food, as for example eggs, spinach, vegetables or milk.

Again, the child may eat only when cajoled, threatened or spoon-fed. The child may also eat sufficient food but dilly-dally at the table.

Children even more than adults crave attention. Their desire is so strong that they will endeavor to secure attention by any means, good or bad.

It is a rare child that doesn't soon discover meal time to be an excellent opportunity. The child observes the eagerness and anxiety of the parent, and trades and barbers on it.

For the anxious parent easily falls victim and offers bribes of praise and approval, at times even favors, to have it eat the food set before it.

Nor is the situation much altered when the parent frets and fumes. Though this is less pleasant to the child, it still serves to keep it the center of attraction.

Many of the feeding problems of children can be prevented by a wholesome attitude of indifference.

Let the parent appear to say, "Here is your food. If you do not eat it, you and not I will suffer." Though this is less pleasant to the position, it should be simple and "matter-of-fact."

At times there is as much senseless insistence on the part of the parent as there is opposition by the child.

Suppose the child doesn't like coddled eggs. What of it? Eggs can be served in other ways. Let it go. Insistence may lead to a complete objection to food in any form.

To Be Dedicated By Governor Friday

Hardin Ill., July 23.—(UP)—Illinois' biggest state-owned bridge and the only one to be named after an individual will be formally opened here tomorrow afternoon with its dedication by Governor L. L. Emmerson.

The bridge, which spans the Illinois river and provides Calhoun county with its first round-the-year connection with the outside world, will be named in honor of a newspaperman, Joseph M. Page, a weekly editor who was active in influencing the state to build it.

In addition to giving the county connection with the outside world through all seasons, it will provide a speedier means for Calhounites to market their ever growing apple crop.

Residents of Jersey county, across the river from here, and other nearby counties are expected to join in the ceremonies attending the dedication. In addition to the state's chief executive other notables present will include E. E. Dierson, director of the State Department of Agriculture and H. H. Cleveland, head of the State Department of Public Works and Buildings.

Band concerts will entertain the visitors, of whom more than 5,000 are expected, until the Governor's arrival, when the dedicatory program will begin.

The first event will be the lifting and lowering of the huge lift span. Then there will be a series of brief addresses by Mayor O. P. Lamar of Hardin, Pierson, Cleveland, and Page.

Formal dedication will take place at 1:45 P. M., by Emmerson who, after a brief address will cut the ribbons at either end of the vertical lift span officially opening the bridge to traffic.

The bridge solves a business problem which has confronted Calhoun county for many years and which has been particularly serious in connection with its large apple production.

Calhoun county, without a railroad, has shipped products to market by ferrying across the Illinois through all seasons. It will provide a speedier means for Calhounites to market their ever growing apple crop.

Residents of Jersey county, across the river from here, and other nearby counties are expected to join in the ceremonies attending nearly a year to build it. It has a length of 2,367 feet and a draw of 300 feet.

The bridge is expected to be a considerable saving to the apple growers in the county because it eliminates ferry tolls to East Hardin where the Chicago and Alton had a branch line and over which thousands of barrels of apples are shipped each year.

The county became famous for its apples in 1890 and it now has almost one million apple trees within its boundaries. The county is 56 miles long and seventy miles wide and has a population of more than 10,000.

Hawks Will Try To Regain Speed Mark

New York, July 22.—(UP)—Captain Frank M. Hawks, who has established numerous speed records in America and Europe, plans to take off from Floyd Bennett airport, Barren Island, at 4 A. M. tomorrow in an effort to recapture the speed record from New York to Havana which was established by him and broken last week by James Goodwin Hall, New York stock broker.

Captain Hawks said that if weather permits, he will attempt a round trip flight in one day, and estimated it would take him approximately 17 hours.

H.T.'s flight to Havana clipped 46 minutes from Hawk's record of nine hours and 21 minutes.

HONORS OF LAST NIGHT'S BOUT GO TO BRAVE MICKEY

Sharkey Out Of Heavy-weight Picture As Result Of Draw

By EDWARD J. NEILL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Brooklyn, N. Y., July 23—(AP)—The official decision says Jack Scharkey didn't lose, but on lion-hearted little Mickey Walker fight today showers all the acclaim and golden promises that go to a newcomer scaling the heavyweights heights.

In the very heart of the heavy-weight picture is the rugged, grinning, battle-scarred face of the chunky fellow from Rumson, N. J., welterweight and middleweight titleholder in his time, now at least as good as Sharkey because two learned judges and a referee compromised on a draw after 15 rounds of hurly-burly battle in Ebbets Field last night.

Certainly Mickey turned in the most surprising upset of many a fight season as he harassed the big sailorman through the rough and tumble battle that revealed Sharkey in another of his disappointing struggles and gave a crowd of 32,000 a chance to boo, and exult in his discomfiture.

There was no questioning whom the crowd that almost filled the National League ball yard thought had won but the arbiters arrived at the compromise decision by every possible route left open to them.

Easiest Way Out
Referee Arthur Donovan, for instance, though the bulldog courage, the eternal aggressiveness of the little fellow who gave Sharkey an advantage of 29 pounds in his height and reach, entitled Mickey to the decision. Judge George Kelly voted Sharkey the award apparently on the basis of his right hand punching that gashed Walker's left eyelid in the fifth round and opened it wide in the closing session. Judge Charles F. Mathison chose the middle course and called it a draw while The Associated Press score sheet counted up the same way, with seven rounds for Walker, seven for Sharkey and one even.

But regardless of the futility of the decision, as futile as the battling itself, honors for the evening went into the lap of Walker, the 169½ pounder who dared tackle a Sharkey weighing 198½, out-bulled and out-punched him for ten rounds, and slipped back only when the embattled sailor rallied fiercely to try and save the day in the last four rounds.

Sharkey found the range then with the long right hand punches he had been tossing in desultory fashion all evening, the short clubbing smashes in close that opened wide the gash in Mickey's left eyelid. Blood poured down Walker's cheek, smeared his features into a red, grinning false face, and gave the erratic Sharkey the incentive to come on and tie the count.

Long Layoff Counted
Sharkey plainly showed the effects of his ring layoff of over a year since he lost his chance to win the heavyweight title by fouling Max Schmeling in the fourth round two years ago. He boxed slowly, cautiously, and looked ridiculous at times valiantly holding on to the little fellow who hardly came up to his chin.

Sharkey was "winging" right hand punches through most of the early rounds, missing oftener than he landed. He explained afterward that he hurt the knuckles of his left hand in the first round and could not hook with that hand thereafter.

But regardless of Sharkey's inefficiency and lack of spark, Walker amazed the critics with his dogged, firing tactics, his ability to take the big sailor's best punches where they did land, and the determined left hand socking to the body that at times had a lot to do with Sharkey's holding.

Three times, in the fifth, eighth and fifteenth rounds, Sharkey was warned either for low blows or butting. The big crowd that paid $210,000 to see the show bowed Sharkey roundly as Referee Donovan called attention to the fouls.

The verdict, another severe blow to the fading Sharkey prestige, may mean a return bout between the pair or it may left Walker to such prominence that he will get the title shot at Schmeling next June.

ROSENBLOOM BEATEN
Denver, Colo., July 23—(AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavy-weight champion has lost his second non-title fight with George Manley, 177-pound Denver boxer.

Duplicating his performance in an engagement last spring, Manley pounded the Harlem clown to a 10-round decision here last night.

Rosenbloom, who weighed 175, started strongly and for the first three rounds had Manley under control. When he could have crashed the Denver boy to the mat with hard smashes, however, Rosenbloom was content to cuff him lightly. The Denver boy rocked Manley in the fifth with a terrific right and chased him around the ring hammering all the way. Manley was wavering at the bell.

The next two rounds Rosenbloom punished Manley, but from there on Manley strengthened. He weakened Rosenbloom with a hard body attack. In the eighth Manley opened a cut on Rosenbloom's eye brow. The tenth round was a toe-to-toe slugfest affair.

The race was worth $10,850 to the winner.

Dave Cobb of Harvard in the 380-meter run and Joe Crowley of Yale in the discus throw were the United States athletes to win first places. Cobb ran the half mile in 1:52.8, a noteworthy performance because of the condition of the track, while Crowley took the discus title with a throw of 45.95 meters.

New York, July 23—(UP)—Denying all charges made by Mrs. Dugan in her suit for divorce, "Jumping Joe" Dugan, former major league baseball star, has filed counter charge supported by an affidavit by Waite Hoyt, pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics.

The counter charges were learned of yesterday when Mrs. Dugan was awarded temporary alimony of $25 weekly and $250 counsel fees. In her suit for divorce, Mrs. Dugan charged the former third baseman of the New York Yankees with cruelty and claims he has been drinking, gambling, and otherwise acting as a "fiend incarnate." Mrs. Hoyt supported Mrs. Dugan's charges in an affidavit.

Dugan charges that his wife did the drinking and gambling, alleging she borrowed money from friends, the loans ranging from $500 to $1,000 and lost all of it at the race tracks. Hoyt, in backing up Dugan's charges declared that four years ago in Montreal, Mrs. Dugan was under the influence of liquor and started a fight with a stranger only to turn upon her husband when he attempted to calm her.

When the nomination opens for the champion hard luck player of the 1931 baseball season Remy Kremer of the Pittsburgh Pirates is in line for a good many votes.

He has been pitching a fairly good brand of ball but the Pirates seldom have backed him up and as a result he is far down the National League list with only six victories against 12 defeats. So far he has pitched 160 innings and allowed 164 hits. Yesterday he suffered another setback to make it four defeats in his last five starts three of them by one run margins. He pitched eight shutouts in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader but lost a 3-2 decision to Freddy Helmsch in one bad inning.

The second, when three hits and a bad throw by Traynor gave the Robins all their runs.

Pittsburgh won the first game 10-6 when the Brooklyn defense went to pieces in the sixth inning just as Joe Shaute hit a wild streak. The Pirates scored six runs on only one hit.

MERCHANTS WIN HOT GAME FROM SWISSVILLE NINE

Pitchers' Battle Marks Game Played On No. Side Diamond

The Twilight Baseball League schedule opened last evening with two games being played, the Merchants team meeting the Swissville Tigers at the high school athletic field and Dementtown crossing bats with the Highland avenue nine at Independent field. This evening the I. N. U. Co. team will oppose the East Enders at Independent field and the City Dudes and West Enders will battle for supremacy at the north side diamond. Tomorrow evening the Merchants are scheduled to meet the Dementtown team at athletic field while Swissville and Highland avenue crews will meet at Independent field.

The Merchants won over Swissville last evening by a 3 to 1 count in a pitching duel between Phelps for the winners and Clark for the losers. The latter allowed but five hits, two of which came in the eighth inning, when the Merchants broke the one run tie to forge ahead and Phelps with fine support then held the opposition. A triple play by the Merchants in the second inning was a feature of the game, in which Hargrave, Pitney and Pontius figured. The score was as follows:

5 to 4 in an eleven inning clash and climbed back to third place in the standing. Woody English made the winning wallo, a single that brought in Hemslay.

John McGraw came back to the New York Giants bench and promptly saw his team drop to fourth through a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Cincinnati Reds. Although McGraw shook up the batting order, the Giants could not hit Red Lucas effectively. Philadelphia and St. Louis were rained out.

With the American League race looking more and more like a cut and dried affair, the New York Yankees stepped out to grab a share of the limelight. The Yanks got only an even break with Detroit, losing the first game 3-2 as George Uhle held them to six hits and winning the second 9-5. But Babe Ruth couted two homers and Lou Gehrig one and Ben Chapman stole his 37th base, all in the second game.

Philadelphia's Athletics increased their margin to nine full games with their ninth straight triumph. The A's landed on Mel Harder in the seventh to beat Cleveland 7-3 as Rube Walberg turned in his 14th victory of the season while Washington took a beating from the St. Louis Browns. Two Senator mounders for the Browns, yielding 15 hits while Sammy Gray granted only six.

Deep in the second division, the Chicago White Sox and Boston Red Sox put on a good private scrap, dividing a double bill. Boston took the first game 3 to 2 in a fine pitching duel between Danny MacFadden and Red Faber while Chicago pounded out a 9 to 3 triumph in the second clash as Al Thomas continued the good mound work and Johnny Watwood led a 15-hit attack with five safe wallops.

Sports Parade

By HENRY McELMORE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, July 23—(UP)—Gentlemen, I give you Jack Sharkey, the most original, free-thinking and novel heavyweight ever to grace the American scene.

Having made little or no progress toward the heavyweight championship Jack apparently has gone into reverse and now has his heart set on the flyweight championship and intermediate stops. He took a step in that direction (and the direction, by the way, is backwards) last night by holding Mickey Walker, the middle weight title-holder, to a draw in 15 blistering rounds.

We now may expect the Boston sailor to challenge Jack Thompson for the welterweight championship, and so on down the line until he hits Midget Wolgast and his 111 or so pounds. Maybe we'd better make that read "runs into Midget Wolgast, etc." for judging by Sharkey's work last night he couldn't hit the Graf Zeppelin with a handful of oatmeal.

Gene Tunney, who says boxing is "degrading," established headquarters in a few hard by the ring and remained until the last blow swung. Gene, despite a panama hat that he has been wearing since the Treaty of Ghent, was his usual handsome self and looked as fit as the night he stepped it against Dempsey. The man even went so far as to stand up and shout when Walker backed Sharkey into the ropes in the eleventh.

The attendance at the scrap was something like 110,000 if you care to include the 82,297 bugs who took up vantage points above the ring after the lights were turned on.

The bugs, democratic to a fault, played no favorites. We noticed, with what we consider justifiable pride, that one young fellow, after refusing behind our left ear, made his next stop on Mayor Jimmy Walker. He must have been a Republican for the mayor paid him scant attention.

Joe Humphries, the veteran announcer whose silver voice has floated from more than a thousand rings and waked more than 10,000 babies six blocks away, was unable to perform due to a case of laryngitis. It was reported Joe had nothing more serious than a sore throat when he called the promoters but his effort to pronounce laryngitis put him to bed with a raging fever and a fractured jaw.

Joe's absence recalled his last illness which resulted from a splendid attempt to introduce Ralph Fleucello. Joe was out and about within three weeks.

GREEN FORESEES GREATER DANGER OF SOCIAL UNREST

Head Of Union Labor In United States Tells His Impressions

By THOMAS L. STOKES
United Press Staff Correspondent
Washington, July 23.—(UP)—
Strikes and discontent evident in many quarters today as an outgrowth of unemployment hold a big threat of greater dangers unless courageous measures of relief are adopted, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared.

In an interview with the United Press, Green repeated his demand that President Hoover call a conference to formulate a national economic program. Only by such means can much suffering and probable disorders be prevented next winter, he believed.

He outlined a program or declaration of principles for this conference, the gist of which is guaranteed security for those now employed, absorption of the unemployed by shortening hours, and no reduction of wages. Restoration of a feeling of security among workers, he said, would lead to buying and would bring a return of prosperity.

Workers Scared
"At the present time working people are scared to death," Green declared. "They get a dollar and hold on to it."

This psychological situation will continue, he said, until security is assured for the worker.

Green sat coattail in his office and appeared a little worn from the heat. His voice rose frequently in passionate remonstrance, with an occasional bitter note.

The head of American organized labor drew a dark picture of present economic conditions and spoke out strongly as to the obligations in this crisis of President Hoover and the leaders of industry.

"I've repeatedly recommended that President Hoover call a conference of labor, industry and economists to give consideration to measures to relieve the present situation, particularly to release the buying power of those at work in order to relieve unemployment," Green said. "Nobody else but the President could call such a conference. Nobody else could assemble the big men of industry."

"I have maintained that it is the obligation of the management of industry to assure those who are now employed of work security and to spread out work and absorb those now unemployed."

Matter of Work
"It's a matter of work," he said, emphatically.

"It is the obligation of the managers of industry. They must face it. They must face it even if they have to divide work."

Turning to the things he sees around him which have discouraged and at the same time fired him, Mr. Green said:

"Strikes are taking place in many sections among textile workers and coal miners and miscellaneous industries. All this reveals a situation of social unrest and industrial discontent. In some cities in Oklahoma recently hungry men and women invaded stores and shops seeking food and supplies."

"Mass meetings are being held. Communists are extremely busy mobilizing the discontented. In my judgment all of these incidents reveal a serious state of affairs."

Outlining his program for the proposed national conference, Green said:

Guarantee Of Jobs

"There should be, first a declaration that all who are now employed should be guaranteed secure in their jobs, that no one should be discharged except for inefficiency, that if it is necessary to carry out this pledge, industry should adjust its working time so that all would share equally in work."

"In the second place, the conference ought to pledge industry to reduce the number of work days per week and the number of work hours per day so that those now employed could be given work at the earliest possible date."

"The conference, in the third place should go on record that wages be maintained and that no reductions take place."

"The government should obligate itself at this conference, in the fourth place, to enlarge its building and construction program and in order to do this effectively all red tape should be cut and all unnecessary delay eliminated."

"The conference then should take steps to organize national, state and community forces so that all cases of suffering and need would be cared for this winter."

"These pledges would remove fear and release buying power. Following adoption of these declarations an appeal then should be made to all labor to spend to utmost capacity. With work secure, fear would be removed and buying would begin. There would be no reason to stint."

The conference then, Green said, could go into such long-time remedial measures as unemployment insurance. He favors unemployment insurance by act of industry itself through creation of reserves. This could be done by cooperation of employer and employee.

Asked whether he advocated direct appropriations by the federal government for relief, Green replied:

"I don't think there will be any choice in the matter. We'll have to call in all agencies to relieve distress."

When Constance Bennett and the Marquis de la Falaise Coudray arrived in New York on the same train and were to sail for Europe on the same boat, the rumor factory started working overtime. But the blonde screen star, shown above before sailing, has denied reports that she and the Marquis will be married when Gloria Sawson's divorce from him becomes final.

LOS ANGELES MAY REMOVE BUNKER HILL

Plan Is Proposed to Level 30 Blocks in Heart Of City

Los Angeles, —(UP)— Imagine dirt, enough to solidly fill 14 city blocks 100 feet high, being moved out of town on street cars.

That is what Los Angeles is preparing to do if it adopts a $27,000,000 plan to remove "Bunker Hill," a huge mound rearing its crest in the downtown district.

A hindrance to traffic and the growth of the commercial section of Los Angeles, Bunker Hill festered so long that citizens persuaded the city council and the county supervisors to remove this cancer.

Trimming 30 Blocks
The huge task of slicing off 30 blocks of territory and regrading it to provide an approximate level with the surrounding district at first seemed to be an impossible one, but with the aid of modern engineering equipment it was found feasible, provided the project could be financed.

All that the city fathers of Los Angeles are waiting for now is a financial Croesus who can suggest a plan whereby a bond issue—which would place Los Angeles' bonded indebtedness beyond all lawful limits—can be avoided. One proposal has been made that trust certificates or some other form of security not carrying an obligation of fixed debt service be adopted.

Because the task was adjudged to be too great for private enterprise, it has been recommended that public funds and public supervision be used in the demolition.

There are 43 actual city blocks occupied by the hill; of these 30 are to be regraded if plans are carried out. At the highest point Bunker Hill is 140 feet high.

Excavation Smallest Cost

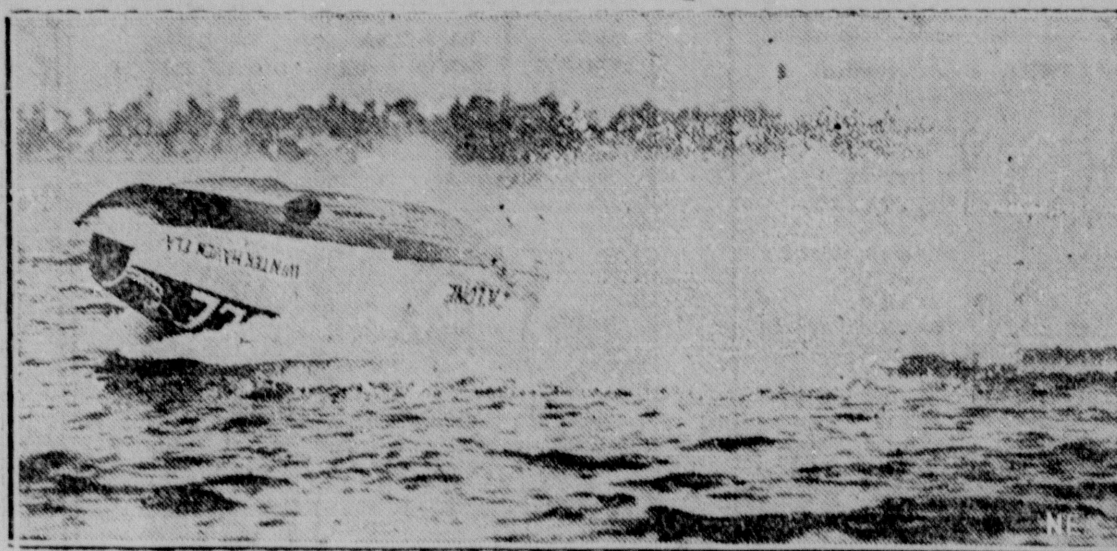

Although the excavation of the 8,800,000 cubic yards of dirt is estimated to cost only $4,576,000, the initial expense of acquiring the territory is high, being calculated at $22,333,532.

However, since only the lower half of the hill is of any immediate use, it is planned to purchase it for $14,082,528, and remodel that section first.

At present 29 per cent of this is covered by office buildings, 16 per cent by stores, 14 per cent by hotels 10 per cent by lofts, 7 per cent by departments stores, 5 per cent by garages and parking stations, the remainder by miscellaneous enterprises.

Since it is just north of the heart of the business district, its values are somewhat affected by property

Malcolm Pope, dare-devil outboard motorboat racer, isn't at all upset by the capsizing of his craft the Cyclone. For it has been built with a special covered deck which allows it to roll over in the water while traveling at high speed. This spectacular picture shows the maneuver being executed purposely on Lake Manahasset, Long Island. A sharp twist of the rudder threw the boat on its back in a whirl of spray, as you see it here. values there, statisticians who compiled the figures declared.

Should Los Angeles attempt this project it will be following in the steps of Seattle, Washington; Milwaukee, Wisconsin and other cities that have found it necessary to change their natural contours to make way for natural growth.

None Rewarded For Capture Of Slayer

St. Joseph, Mo., July 22.—(UP)— Four St. Joseph policemen who had visions of sharing a $90,000 reward for the capture of the gangster, Fred Burke, today were enjoying 15-day vacations, but any idea of other reward for their work had gone.

Captured near here, Burke now is serving a life sentence in Michigan penitentiary, for killing a traffic patrolman. He was wanted in many states and was suspected of the St. Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago, in which seven gangsters were killed.

The rewards were not paid, however, because Burke was returned to Michigan, instead of Illinois, and because he was captured a few days after the reward offers expired.

A truck driver who first recognized Burke and secured his arrest also got only personal satisfaction out of his work.

Camels are blended of fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos, made fine and kept fine, kept always in prime smoking condition.

Resident Paupers Are Township Care

Springfield, Ill., July 22.—(UP)— Resident paupers are a charge on the township and transient paupers concern the county according to an opinion by the Attorney General's office here today to State's Attorney W. A. Walker, Macomb.

The opinion also stated that as the law became effective July 1, this year it was up to townships to provide for its pauper fund, raised before the townships were required to furnish such support.

Previously the Attorney General's office had declared that such county funds should be turned back into the County Treasury.

In another opinion on the subject, State's Attorney A. V. Smith, Waukegan, was informed that it would not be legal for a township to raise funds for support of the poor by means of a bond issue.

Hitch-Hikers Held For Shooting Man

Kansas City, July 22.—(AP)— Martha Davis, 17, of Virden, Ill., and Joseph Greco, Chicago, hitch-hikers, were under arrest here today on a charge of shooting and wounding Rudolph Petereck, a Topeka salesman. Police said they confessed.

Petereck, in a dangerous condition at an Independence, Mo., hospital, was shot twice after a man and woman had ridden with him several miles. Petereck said he had failed to comply with the hiker's demands to "get over."

The girl had a bullet in her left arm. She admitted, officers said, she was struck by one of the bullets fired in the scuffle between Petereck and Greco. Her sister, Ann, 16, was held for questioning.

Martha said she and her sister had hitchhiked from Virden to obtain work here. They met Greco near Rolla, Mo.

GOLFERS CENTER ON ST. PAUL FOR WEEK-END TOURNEY

$10,000 Open Will Have An International Atmosphere

St. Paul, July 23—(AP)—A host of professional and amateur golfers from several countries gathered here today for final practice rounds and gave the St. Paul $10,000 open tournament, starting tomorrow, an international tinge.

France, Germany, England and the Philippines were represented along with the United States and Canada.

Hurry Cooper, Chicago professional, who won the championship here last year, carded a 79 in a practice session, and termed the Keller course a "bit more tricky" than in 1930.

Tony Manero, last year's runnerup shot a 76 as did Horton Smith, unattached, who finished third in 1930. Rounds of 71 were turned in by Ed Doudley, Wilmington, Del., and Lew Waldron, Celina, Ohio.

The international stars on hand for the opening tomorrow include Percy Alliss, Berlin; Audrey Boomer, France; Augusta Boyer, France; Leslie Cotton, England, and Larry Montes, Philippines.

There will be 18 holes of medal play tomorrow and Saturday with the final 36 holes on Sunday for the 60 low qualifiers among the 180 contestants.

Smith, who came out of Joplin, Missouri, two years ago with a sweet swing and a deft putting touch, is wondering if he wasn't shooting a bit over his head, when he scored brilliant victories in United States and Europe.

Here today to take his chance at the money offered in the St. Paul $10,000 open, Smith declared he is physically fit, but is somewhat like a batter in a slump. "I am not hitting them as I should," he said.

"I haven't any alibis, but I am just a little afraid of the world thinks I am a better golfer than I am. Maybe I was shooting a little over my head when I turned up the winter circuit two years ago."

HUTCHISON CLAN 1 UP
Chicago, July 23—(AP)—The Hutchison clan is one up on the Aytons in their golfing feud.

Jock Hutchison, Sr. and Laurie Ayton, Sr., have battled for years and years, and yesterday Jock, Jr., and Laurie, Jr., took up the struggle with young Jock winning the decision and the Chicago district junior title.

The struggle was just as tough as any their fathers ever staged, young Jock requiring 37 holes before young Laurie fell. Ayton was stymied on the final green, giving Jock, Jr., victory. Hutchison had a 75 and Ayton had a 76 for the morning round, and they went to lunch square. Ayton had a two-hole lead at 27 holes, but couldn't hold it and they were even up at 36 holes.

GLY-CAS QUIETED NERVES, CORRECTED STOMACH TROUBLE

Mr. Kinsel Hardly Able to Work, Naused, Had Dizzy Spells; Gly-Cas Easily Regulated System.

"The wonderful change Gly-Cas made in my stubborn case is actually as if by magic," said Mr. L. H. Kinsel, Harrison and Second Street, Guthrie, Oklahoma, well known furniture dealer of that city. "My condition became so serious I had to let up on my work. My stomach soured, bloated, had awful dizzy spells, was nauseated, appetite fell, hardly able to eat anything without bad after effects, was terribly nervous, while system in bad condition. Finally, after all else failed, I began taking Gly-Cas and it showed me improvement from the very first. This new scientific discovery soon quieted my nerves, corrected my stomach and bowel trouble and now I sleep well, eat regularly, enjoy my meals and feel fine in every way. Gly-Cas is the greatest of them all, it has merit."

Gly-Cas has won many thousands of friends and holds them, simply because it gives real results which are lasting.

States In Tiff Will Not Fight Battle In Courts

Washington—The word "sportsmanlike" is decidedly on the up and up. Because it recently saved three historic states from legal combat, simply by appearing on the floor of a conference at Washington, it now promises to become the label of a new recipe for settling arguments out of court—if the recipe works.

Maryland, which owns the entire Potomac River, and Virginia, and West Virginia, against whose shores the river also laps, were represented by their respective conservation officials at a meeting on July 9 to draw up "an amicable agreement" over fishing rights on the boundary river. They came to an immediate deadlock around an old point of dispute.

The Virginians held that by a compact of 1875, Virginia anglers have just as much right as Marylanders to cast their lines in the Potomac. But Maryland officials were positive that, by the same compact, Virginians must pay the higher non-resident license fee to fish in Maryland's river. Both sides were backed by opinions of their attorney generals.

They had reached the place where both recognized the only solution to be a supreme court test, when Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association and a guest at the meeting, urged that they arrive at a mutual angling arrangement in a "sportsmanlike way." He declared that if the Virginians had some assured common interest in the river conservation leaders must more effectively combat the pollution which is now killing out the Potomac's fish and fish food and stop illegal fishing practices.

So in the near future a special committee will test the "sportsmanlike" recipe. Representatives of the three conservation commissions will meet with Lewis E. Radcliffe of the United States Bureau of Fisheries acting as "referee," and a trio of attorney generals as bodyguards. Commissioner Swenson Earle will probably demand that the Virginians give Maryland some angling rights in their streams which flow into the Potomac in exchange for rights in the river at which Virginians have already balked.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The next big golfing party of national moment is the amateur championship, to be contested over the fine course of the Beverly Country club, Chicago, and it's very likely to be as wide open an affair as the championship at Toledo.

If the returns at Inverness mean anything, one of the outstanding threats to carry off the last of the Jones prizes will be Thomas Phillip Perkins, the very quiet, bespectacled Englishman who came to this country two years ago to make his living and play golf.

T. Phillip finished with the notable record of 297 in the open, only five strokes back of Burke and Von Elm. He was far and away the leading amateur, besides being 10 strokes better than any of the visiting British professionals.

By many competent critics, Perkins is regarded as the finest amateur shotmaker in America at the present time. At Chicago, he may find the up-and-coming youngsters the toughest hurdles to clear, especially in the first two rounds of 18 hole competition where most anything can and does happen. Johnny Lehman of Chicago eliminated Perkins last year at Merion in the first round.

Charley Seaver, the big, blond boy from Los Angeles, now a Stanford undergraduate, and the equally big, robust William Lawson Little, Jr., of San Francisco, will be two of the youngsters worth watching at Beverly in September. Seaver went to the semi-finals last year. Little disposed of the veteran Dr. Willing and lost to Gene Homans, finalist against Jones.

Among the east's younger set, Maurice McCarthy, Jr., a bulldog of a scrapper, has the game as well as the spirit to carry him quite a distance. McCarthy scored a hole-in-one and went 10 extra holes to beat George Von Elm in the second round of the 1930 tournament.

IT MAY BE JOHNSTON—

Harrison R. ("Jimmy") Johnston, who won the amateur title at Pebble Beach in 1929, has stayed away from the competitive trails most of the summer in order to be in shape for a comeback at Beverly.

Nothing would strike a more popular chord than a triumph for the Minnesota, whose gallant finish at Merion last year just failed to put him in the qualifying fold. Coming a year after his victory on the west coast, this was a heart-breaking setback for Jimmy. He offered no alibis and took his place in the gallery to watch the big parade go on.

MUSKETEERS STILL THREATEN
The French tennis forces have hung out storm signals in advance of the challenge round, but it will be time enough to strike up a swan song for the "Three Musketeers," if and when they are beaten back in their own stronghold.

Cochet has seen the day when he could spot most any rival a sore shoulder and still win. Borotra won't have a fliden to worry him and "Toto" Brugnon fits into an effective doubles combination with either of his countrymen.

Heart of Liane

BEGIN HERE TODAY

LIANE BARRETT, 18, and beautiful, is fascinated by VAN ROYAL, handsome man of the world. CASS BARRETT, Liane's mother, begs her not to see him any more. At Willow Stream, L. L. where Cass is playing summer stock, Liane meets MURIEL LADD, debutante. Muriel is said to be in love with CHUCK DESMOND, reporter, but plays around with other men. ELISE MINTER, the engineer, told Liane there is gossip about Robert and Mrs. LADD.

Cass goes on tour in the fall, leaving Liane with the rich MRS. CLEESPAUGH. In Philadelphia Cass is taken seriously ill and Liane rushes to her. Cass babbles in her delirium of some mystery concerning the girl's birth. She returns to the Cleespaugh house to convalesce. CLIVE CLEESPAUGH asks Liane to marry him and, wishing to help her mother, she agrees.

TRISSA LORD and FANNY AMBERTON, sisters, come to stay at the Cleespaugh's and Trissa is attracted to Liane. She tries to break off the engagement between Clive and Liane. Black matters are piled up in a night club, demanding $10,000. At her wit's end, she goes to SHANE McDERMID, police officer who once befriended her. Plans for the wedding proceed. McDermid tells Liane she has a new boy.

At a ball given for the PRINCE OF SLAVARIA, Liane disappears. She is found by the PRINCE himself start a search for her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

AFTER Hugo, Crown Prince of Slavaria, had left her Liane stood quite still for a moment. The music from the ballroom came to her in little muted gasps. She thought, "I ought to run back to the box and see Clive for a moment. He'll wonder where I've vanished." She wondered how the Prince would find her wrap. She had not told him what it was like.

With one foot on the bottom stair she stood irresolute. As she turned a quiet, commanding voice said, "Don't move, girl. We've got you covered."

Lightning-like, she wheeled in time to get a dim flash of two grim men in evening clothes. One was armed. This she saw before the black silk scarf was slipped over her eyes.

"Grab her, Len," one of the men said gruffly. A hand clamped itself over her mouth. Strong, unkindly arms lifted her. She felt the night air on her face. She kicked violently. One silver pump fell off, unnoted. Struggling still, she was lifted up. Ah, a car seat. The smell of Russian leather, of cigarettes. The thrum of an expensive motor. Those iron hands still clamped her wrists.

Her face was utterly veiled in that black silk. She heard the engine slide into second, into high. Smoothly the car glided over the ruts of the entrance—yes, that was a remembered bump! She knew they were skimming along the turnpike. But whether the road led east or west she could not say.

The man on the seat beside her released her hands. He said with ironic politeness, "Do you no good to scream now, miss. Better be quiet and make no trouble."

Liane bit her lips to keep from weeping. "If it's my pearls you want," she said tremulously, "you may as well have them now and let me go. I've nothing else."

MORMONS MEET IN PALMYRA, N. Y. TO CELEBRATE 85th Anniversary Of Exodus To Utah Observed By Faithful

Palmyra, N. Y., July 23—(UP)—Disciples of the teachings of Brigham Young have assembled on their sacred ground to celebrate the 85th anniversary of the Mormon exodus to the Valley of the Great Salt Lake.

Members of the church of the Latter Day Saints—the Mormon's formal name—came here from Utah, Canada and the eastern United States to worship on Hill Cumorah, where tradition says Joseph Smith found the golden plates which led to his founding of the church.

The hill is held sacred by all Mormons, and will be the center of the ceremonies lasting through Saturday.

The celebration here is in connection with the "covered wagon celebration" now being held in Salt Lake City, the Mormon place of refuge. It was 85 years ago that Young and his followers, driven out of other places by objectors to their beliefs, entered the Salt Lake Valley and established their present home.

Young succeeded Smith as leader of the church. Smith founded it after, according to tradition, the Angel Moroni appeared to him in a vision and led him to Hill Cumorah, where he found the golden plates which Smith said was the divine inspiration for establishment of the church.

Smith later went to Nauvoo, Ill., and was killed there.

of valve." The man's laugh grated. "We'll have them, too. But later." "Where are you taking me?" the girl asked in terror. "What can you possibly want? You've mistaken me for someone else. I have no money to give you."

"We know you right enough. Name's Barrett, ain't it?" She nodded and felt fresh terror at this disclosure.

"Shut your trap now and don't bother me," the man said with engaging frankness. "You can have your say after a while."

THEY rode thereafter in silence broken only by the grunt of the man in the front seat. "Right here?" Liane heard the man beside her ask as the car slowed. A grunt from the front seat was the reply. The car seemed to turn.

For a few minutes they traveled under branches bending so low Liane could feel them scrape the tonneau. Then the car bumped over a deeply rutted lane and came to a standstill.

"Out here," commanded the surly voice. Liane felt herself lifted, carried. No use, she thought, to cry out now. She was in the hands of the enemy.

The man carrying her went up three steps that creaked under him. A door swung on protesting hinges and the cold air of an overheated, underventilated room assailed Liane's nostrils.

Clumsy fingers fumbled at the tight knot of the black silk scarf which bound her eyes. The girl gasped with relief as the fastenings gave way. She was shivering all over now. Even the hot air of that dusty room did not serve to warm her. Her teeth chattered as with ague as she glanced around. It was a boxlike room in a cheap house. Two mission chairs with collapsing springs stood in front of a gas grate. A bright green carpet of furious pattern adorned the floor. Everything was very dirty—windows, limp curtains, the floor itself. All this Liane took in in the split second before the man spoke.

"Sit down," he growled at her. Because her knees would no longer obey her the girl did as her captor commanded. An incongruous figure she was in that sordid place, with her frills, her bare shoulders.

She stared at the man who had carried her. The other one could be heard in the hall outside, shouting orders at some unseen henchmen.

The man returning Liane's stare was iron gray, loosely built. His mouth was a thin, cruel line. Hands in pockets, he lounged against theinkel, regarding the girl with a bitter, sardonic gaze.

"You're the smart kid who bopped Ginny Weisman over the head down at the gold coast movies," he accused Liane. The girl's heart gave a wild leap. Did this explain the strange adventure in which she now found herself? Were these men friends of that captured bandit who had tried to hold up the box office at the Willow Stream Theatre?

But the man's next words belied this. "Don't get me wrong," he leered. "Ginny's no pal of mine. I just remembered seeing your picture in the paper at that time."

"You talk too much," growled a voice from the doorway. Liane glanced up to see the first man's partner glaring at them. "Get out," growled the newcomer. "Always falling for a new skirt. Shut your gab and beat it."

The man with the iron gray hair sidled out, muttering.

"Now, look here, girl," began the newcomer in an oily tone more distasteful to Liane than his growl had been. "You keep quiet and you won't get hurt but if I hear you starting any funny business—well, don't, that's all!"

"If you'd only tell me what it's all about," Liane began desperately.

THE man grinned horribly, without mirth. "You'll find out what's it all about," he granted. Taking up his station in the other broken-down leather chair he drew a pipe from the pocket of his coat and began leisurely to stuff it. Liane noted that his evening clothes were of good quality, his linen spotless. Doubtless he had managed to slide by as one of the guests of the club.

What was Clive thinking? What was he doing? Would any of the club attendants have noticed the number of the fleeing car? Would they have followed it, noted which way it went?

Liane beat her hands together softly. She looked across at the calmly smoking fellow and said again, "Please let me go. This can't do you any good, you know. Mr. Cleespaugh will have searching parties out."

The man smiled evilly. "Maybe we hadn't thought of that, hey?"

He stamped out his pipe on the billious yellow tile of the fireplace. He stood up, stretching himself like a big cat. His eyes were cat's eyes, general and baleful in the half light of the ugly room. Then he came toward the girl with a rolling gait, incongruous with those gentleman's clothes of his.

Instinctively she shrank from him. He was so big, so formidable. But she kept her shoulders up, stared him in the eye without quailing. She set her teeth to keep from screaming.

"Pretty little piece, you are," he purred at her. His big hand reached out to touch her bare shoulder.

Liane sprang back. Like lightning was her movement as she darted out of the big chair and away from the man's grasping fingers. But one foot was unshod and the other, in its high-heeled silver slipper, stumbled. She would have fallen if the man's hateful arm had not reached out to steady her.

"Better be good," he warned. He thrust her back into the collapsing chair. His talon-like fingers reached for her supple young loveliness again.

"Keep away from me," Liane moaned faintly. And all at once everything went black before her. She felt herself falling—

PRESIDENT B. & O.
SAYS SOLUTION IS
"BETTER SERVICE"

Holds Buses Are Not In Real Competition
With Railroads

Kansas City, July 23—(UP)—A 70-year-old man, who is president of one of the nation's great railroads and had just paid $70,000,000 for another was up at daylight to inspect what he had bought and proclaim vehemently that only "service, better service" could bring the public back to railroad coaches.

Daniel Willard, Willard of the B. & O., had arrived in Kansas City on his private train to inspect the properties of the Chicago & Alton, bankrupt carrier recently acquired by the Baltimore & Ohio.

By 7 a. m. Willard had arisen, shaved and begun a brisk tour through a mass of engines, cars, trackage and switches. Other members of the party still were asleep.

"Service, better service, that's what we must give the public," Willard repeated as he drummed his fingers restlessly, and crossed to his private car to adjust a window shade.

"We can't take the public by the nape of the neck and force it to ride. We can only give it such courteous and fair treatment that it will want to ride with us."

Willard implied he had set out to imbue the Alton's personnel with the same enthusiasm for living and working that emanate from his own quick and decisive movements.

His blue eyes, never still, shot an almost belligerent glance through gold-rimmed glasses when asked whether he expected the railroads ever to regain their dominance in the transportation world.

"The railroads come back?" he exclaimed. "They haven't been anywhere. The only reason that railroad business is bad is that all kinds of business is bad. There's no such thing as competition between railroads and buses. They must cooperate and are cooperating. Air transportation has not yet reached a stage to influence rail traffic. But the railroads will never get back the travel constantly turning to private automobiles. The public likes to ride in its own car. But when business is good again, the railroads will be in business as inevitably as ever."

Willard wouldn't hazard prediction as to when business would be "good again."

Wild Cat Jitneys
Barred By Ruling

Springfield, Ill., July 22—(UP)—So-called "wild cat jitney motor service" in Belleville, East St. Louis and adjacent territory, which competed with regular motor bus and street car lines, was banned in an order issued by the Illinois Commerce Commission here today.

The order is directed to some 200 operators of "service cars" and directs them to desist from operating in their present manner until such time as they have obtained lead to do so from the commission.
